100 Nazi Planes Fall As U. S. Bombers Set Aircraft Plants Afire

LONDON, Tuesday, May 30.—(AP)—American heavy bombers and fighters, possibly 2,200 strong, shot 100 enemy aircraft from the sky and hammered seven aircraft factories in Poland and Germany and a synthetic oil works near Stettin yesterday.

The blow was the heaviest dealt in a day of perfect weather which saw approximately 6,500 sorties flown from Allied preinvasion bases in Britain and Italy.

It cost the U. S. Strategic Air Force 35 bombers and 11 fighters, the same losses as reported after Sunday's operations in similar strength when 93 Nazis planes were knocked down.

One Marauder was lost as the Ninth Air Force kept pace with the heavies by sending a record number of 400 twin-engined Marauders and Havocs against French and Belgian bridges and a French airfield.

The German air force network warned that bomber formations were approaching Osnabruck-Muenster, air raid alarms sounded in Berlin, and Cologne radio reported nuisance raiders were headed for west and northwest Germany, the Budapest radio issued a raid warning and the Vichy radio left the air, indicating widespread follow-up night attacks.

AUSTRIA PLANTS HIT

While British-based Liberators and Fortresses were winging across northern Europe, between 500 and 700 heavies from Italy, with matching escort headed into old Austria and bombed a German airframe factory at Atzgersdorf, a few miles southwest of Vienna, the Wollersdorf ferry plane base and the Nord airfield, both near Wiener-Neustadt.

All these targets were visited five days ago when the last big strike over the Alps was made, simultaneously with British-initiated raids on Berlin and Paris. Once again the big bombers ran into intense flak and determined enemy fighter opposition. The losses of the Mediterranean raiders were not immediately announced.

Last night the Budapest radio broadcast an air raid warning, indicating the offensive was swinging uninterrupted into the night cycle from Mediterranean bases.

ROME BOMBED?

The Berlin radio, meanwhile, said a British and American bomber squadron carried out another raid against Rome yesterday, causing heavy destruction and at least 100 deaths in the Sao Paolo quarter.

The climax of a day in which Allied raiders scourged the face of Europe from Polish factories to possible battlefields in western Europe and present front lines in Italy, was struck by the 1,000 American heavy bombers which, for the second day in a row, had an escort of more than 1,200 Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs.

They swept about 750 miles across Germany, bombing aircraft plants at Poznan, Poland; Kreising (Krzesinki), five miles to the southeast; the eastern and southern German cities of Leipzig, Tutow, Sorau and Cottbus, and the Politz synthetic oil plant, 85 miles northeast of Berlin.

"When we were over the Baltic sea 150 miles from the target we could still see black smoke rolling up from it to a height of 20,000 feet," said a bomber crew mem-

Hull To Begin Security Talks With 3 Powers

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—In a new move toward preventing a third world war, Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced tonight that the American government now is ready to discuss with Russia, Great Britain and China the organization of a permanent peace agency.

The announcement came at the end of a series of five meetings he held with a special senate advisory committee, and committeemen who would comment tonight acclaimed what he said. The last of the five meetings was held this morning.

It was learned that Hull does not have the President's approval yet but expects to get it immediately whereupon, it is expected, he will issue invitations for the talks to begin at the earliest convenience of the other nations.

SOME DIFFERENCES

Hull's discussions with the senate committee were generally frank and as detailed as plans can be at this stage, it was learned. Finally a clear majority of the eight-man group, headed by Chairman Connally, Democrat, Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, swung to support of the secretary's program, but there were some differences of view, particularly on whether the peace organization should be set up before the peace it is to preserve.

These differences led the secretary to phrase his statement in such a manner that it reflected no commitments on the parts of the senators, although their general support allowed him to express a hearty encouragement.

His program, as outlined to them, centered around creation of a United Nations council of Russia, the United States, Britain and China, and of an assembly including all the nations.

Hull's statement said:

"The first phase of the informal conversations with the eight senators has been concluded.

"We had frank and fruitful discussions on the general principles, questions and plans relating to the establishment of an international peace and security organization in accordance with the principles contained in the Moscow four-nation declaration, the Connally resolution and other similar declarations made in this country.

HULL "ENCOURAGED"

"I am definitely encouraged and am ready to proceed, with the approval of the President, with informal discussions on this subject with Great Britain, Russia and China and then with governments of other United Nations.

"Meanwhile I shall have further discussions with these and other leaders of both parties in the two houses of congress, and with others.

"The door of non-partisanship will continue to be wide open here at the Department of State, especially when any phase of the planning for a postwar security organization is under consideration."

Actually it appeared that Hull had arrived at one of the important landmarks he set for himself more than two years ago when he undertook some general discussions of postwar security problems with a view to seeing what sort of international collaboration the United States would support.

READY TO GO AHEAD

He was represented as feeling now that he has sufficient backing in this country, particularly in the senate, to go ahead with internation talks with the assurance that in the first steps to be taken he

Would Shake Petrillo's Hold on School Air Music

WASHINGTON, May 29—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, appealed to congress today to "release the music of school children from the domination of Mr. James C. Petrillo," and he may get some action Thursday.

He introduced a bill aimed at preventing Petrillo and his A. F. of L. musicians' union from interfering with non-commercial cultural or educational broadcasts by schools. The measure went to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, which is considering a series of amendments to the federal communications act.

Along with the legislation to ban commercial sponsoring of news broadcasts and news commentators, Vandenberg's proposal may come up for study when the committee assembles Thursday.

"If we are going to rewrite the radio law," the senator told a reporter, "we want this in. It is one notorious phase of the radio situation that will have to be considered if any revision of the radio code is to be adequate."

Through his demands for the use of union musicians, Petrillo has taken high school bands and orchestras off the air, Vandenberg declared. He cited as an example orchestras and bands of high school students assembled from all over the country each year at Interlochen, Mich., for two months' training under expert directors.

"This has been looked on," he said, "as about the finest type of high school musical culture and for years it was on the national radio hookups. But Petrillo took it off the air two years ago and kept it off."

Rocket-Equipped Fighter Planes Used Against Japs

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Rocket-equipped fighter planes have been used successfully in combat against the Japanese, the Army Air Forces reported today.

The announcement made no mention of American rocket-launching planes in Europe, but said they have been effective in the Pacific and China-Burma-India theaters against such land targets as bivouac areas, bridges and ammunition dumps, and against sea targets such as barges and light shipping.

The projectiles can be fired in pairs or salvos from launchers mounted beneath the wings of five types of fighter plane—P-40 Warhawk, P-47 Thunderbolt, P-38 Lightning, P-39 Aircobra and P-51 Mustang.

Ecuador Rebels Seize Guayaquil; 40 Killed

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, May 29.—(AP)—A revolutionist junta seized control of this commercial city after 10 hours of bitter street fighting today, and a Quito dispatch said that Dr. Carlos Arroyo del Rio, Ecuadorean president, had resigned with his entire cabinet.

Forty persons were reported killed in the uprising, led by supporters of exiled former President Velasco Ibarra. The violent movement was aimed at forestalling a scheduled weekend presidential election.

Major Manuel Antonio Hidalgo late today was named military and civil chief of Guayaquil by the provisional junta. The city was calm after earlier fighting, and civilians found armed were rounded up and confined in military barracks.

A report here said Arroyo would present the resignation of all his cabinet members as well as his own.

Crowds in Quito were said to be demonstrating in the streets in favor of Velasco Ibarra.

(This report from Guayaquil was not confirmed, and earlier advices from the capital via Bogota, Colombia, had said the government was in control of the situation in Quito and the remainder of the country with Guayaquil's exception.)

After rebel troops seized the military police barracks in Guayaquil, the revolutionists set up their provisional government junta, which is holding meetings at a government building.

Reports from Quito said a general strike had broken out in the capital, apparently in support of the revolutionists at Guayaquil, and that public demonstrations were arranged as backers of the administration-supported candidate for president clashed in the streets with adherents of the rebels' candidate.

Apparently the junta was set up in Guayaquil by the revolutionists without knowledge of what was happening in the rest of the country. The authorities here either have fled or have been taken prisoner.

The Bogota correspondent said the government had reported in the capital that more than 50 had been killed and 100 injured at Guayaquil. According to the government's information, the carabineros (military police) resisted vigorously, but infantrymen and revolutionists burned barracks and other buildings.

British Fleet Clears Germans From Arctic

By LEO S. DISHER,
Representing the Combined American Press.
Distributed by the Associated Press.

LONDON, Tuesday, May 30.—The British fleet has gunned and bombed its way to what appears to be hands-down mastery of the Arctic ocean clear to Russia and, for more than 100 days, has been sweeping, free from enemy attack, into the very shadows of the Norwegian coast as a prelude to invasion.

I have just returned from four months with the fleet and have seen that the Allies have won the battle of the Arctic as conclusively as that in the Atlantic.

It can be disclosed that U-boat assaults on Allied shipping in the north have been smashed. German plane attacks have, at least temporarily, ceased completely. The German surface Navy has been hammered until it is questionable whether it now constitutes more than a feeble potential threat.

On supply routes which barely a year ago were so filled with U-boats that torpedoes "ran in grooved tracks," German submarine attacks have dwindled in effectiveness until U-boats sunk outnumber Allied vessels lost.

Carrier-borne and RAF land-based aerial attacks on the Germans' Norwegian bases and coastal supply lines have been increased during the past 60 days to the greatest pitch of the war.

The fleet facing the Germans for the final showdown of the European war is one of crack fighting outfits. It has the weight, euipment and strength required to hold the upper hand.

Once I was with an admiral on the bridge of a battleship which was leading a carrier-borne attack on a certain point in Norway. For the only time during my stay with the fleet, German fighters had come up against our bombers and were shellacked.

In the fleet, which almost was within sight of the coast in bright daylight gunners waited at their guns, yawning and muttering threats against the Germans.

The reprisal air attack never came. The admiral finally signalled to his force:

"Congratulations to the aircrews . . . I'm sorry the rest of us had such a boring day."

Rome Lifeline Severed By Shells, Nazis Admit

Fierce Battle Rages in Biak For Airdrome

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Tuesday, May 30.—(AP)—American invaders of Biak are running into fierce enemy opposition near the Mokmer airdrome, General MacArthur announced today.

Tough Yankee Sixth Army troops which invaded the largest of the Schouten islands, 880 miles from the Philippines, Saturday were attempting to take the Mokmer airstrip from the coastal side.

They were less than two miles from the important field, one of three on Biak. This was a gain of more than one-half mile from the point reached in yesterday's headquafters announcement.

UNDER HEAVY FIRE

With attack planes in support, the infantrymen were under heavy fire from Japanese defenders who were installed on ridges overlooking the shore approaches to the Mokmer field.

The spearhead of the American advance had reached a point six miles westward from the original invasion point. The first landing was made three miles east of Bosnek, Biak's largest village. It is on the southeast coast.

Some 200 miles back down the Dutch New Guinea coast, other veterans of the Sixth Army took the advantage in the struggle for the Maffin bay airfield opposite from Wakde island, which was invaded May 18. They occupied a height giving them artillery command over the field and Japanese resistance was reported fading.

BUNABUN OCCUPIED

Far down the British New Guinea coast, the slow-moving Australian ground troops occupied Bunabun. This is 140 miles southeast of Wewak.

The Australians have been moving steadily up the coast, pinching by-passed Japanese in the Wewak area, since they captured Madang April 25.

While the ground forces continued their steady drives to sweep the enemy from all New Guinea, MacArthur's far-ranging bombers hit such widely scattered bases as Truk, in the central Pacific; Rabaul, on New Britain, in the south Pacific; Noemfoor and Japen islands, near Biak, and Manokwari and Babo, on the head of New Guinea.

151-TON DELUGE

Another 151 tons of bombs have been dropped on enemy objectives in the South Pacific, the Navy reported.

Installations on Ponape island bore the brunt of the attack, delivered May 27, when 101 tons of bombs were loosed on the town and airfields.

Fifty tons of bombs were dropped the same day on Wotje island.

At the same time, other planes kept up their extermination attacks on the trapped Japanese in the Wewak area, easing the way for the advancing Australians working their way toward the Aitape area, which was invaded at the same time as Hollandia, April 22.

Yesterday, MacArthur's communique reported that in the Hollandia area additional hundreds of the ensnared Japanese 18th army had succumbed to starvation and disease. Patrols and natives daily reported finding large numbers of enemy dead and dying along the jungle trails and at native villages in the interior.

While ground forces pushed ahead in quest of the airdromes so vital in speeding the drive back to the Philippines, Allied bombers and fighters harassed the enemy from Bougainville in the northern Solomons westward to the Schouten Island area.

This Police Shakedown Needed CPA Breakdown!

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 29.—(INS)—The case of Robert Butterworth will long be remembered in Des Moines police circles, and Patrolman Gus Groff is the officer who will vouch for it.

Groff said today that when he began "shaking down" the 70-year-old painter after Butterworth's arrest, he found in the prisoner's beard, shirt and three pair of overalls the following articles:

Twenty paint brushes; 60 mechanical pens and pencils; four putty knives; 17 combs; a 50-foot rope; two road maps; a ration book; a quart of sauerkraut; several pounds of wieners; five pounds of sugar; a tube of brushless shaving cream; a whistle, about a gross of used toothpicks; adhesive tape; four flashlights; a razor; cake of soap; three boxes of razor blades; a hammer; six knives; shoe laces; a grindstone, and buttons, nails, marbles, safety pins and chains.

The charge against him was "maintaining a fire hazard."

Vital Air Strip Lost to Japs Near Mogaung

SOUTHEAST ASIA HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, May 29.—(AP)—Reinforced Japanese units, launching a heavy attack against Chindit positions near the enemy's north Burma base of Mogaung, have seized a vital air strip and forced the Allied airborne troops to abandon important roadblocks they had held for 17 days, headquarters disclosed today.

At the same time the Allies gained in their fight into Myitkyina, 35 miles to the east.

The main force of the Japanese attack near Mogaung, aimed at relieving the stricken 18th (Singapore) division now falling back before Chinese in the Mogaung valley, came from the south, a communique said. The fresh enemy concentrations first took the air strip and then threw the Chindits from their block southwest of Mogaung which had cut the Mandalay-Myitkyina railway.

The airbornes, commanded by Major General W. D. A. Lentaigne, who have been operating behind the enemy 18th Division, held out for five days under heavy attack before exhausting their ammunition supplies. Then they withdrew northward where columns of General Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese still are pressing down the Mogaung valley against the harassed enemy 18th Division.

Rains, bringing appalling jungle conditions, prevented regular aerial replenishment for the Chindit garrison defending the air strip.

On the Myitkyina battlefield, American and Chinese troops have penetrated deeper into the city from the south, blocking a Japanese exit. A Chinese column swinging around from the southeast at the Zigyun ferry stormed the base and advanced some 1,000 yards to a point about a half-mile from the railway sttaion, a communique said.

Stilwell flew to Myitkyina and directed the new Chinese thrust after spending nearly two days studying the situation.

"Enemy thrusts toward Myitkyina from the west met with heavy losses," the headquarters communique said. "In clear weather our aircraft gave valuable support. Our artillery heavily shelled enemy transport in the north of Myitkyina."

North of the town, levies under the field command of General Frank Merrill ambushed a Japanese party near Njip. The village of Sharaw, about 40 miles to the northwest of Myitkyina, was cap-

Woodrum Hits Bill On Merger Of All Military

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—A warning against "precipitant action" to merge the nation's armed forces was sounded on the house side of the capitol today as Senator Hill, of Alabama, Democratic whip, introduced a merger measure.

Hill's legislation would give the Army, Navy and Air Forces coequal status in a single "department of armed forces." The consolidation would take place six months after the war

Chairman Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, of the House Postwar Military Committee, said in a statement:

"I feel confident that the house will not favor rushing into a revolutionary reorganization of the Army and Navy at this very critical hour in our military operations.

"It would divert the attention of the high command from the important business of winning the war quickly and might plunge us right into a violent controversy within our armed services."

The Army has presented a merger proposition but witnesses for the Navy have by and large been against it during the Woodrum committee hearings.

Woodrum has indicated that his committee intends to make recommendations for the postwar period. The chairman said a report on the merger proposal would be issued soon.

The subject was touched on briefly in the House Rules Committee today when Representative Short, Republican, Missouri, urged passage of the legislation extending the statute of limitations so that the prewar Pearl Harbor commanders eventually may be court-martialed. Short told the committee that the results of that court-martial "should go a long way to determine the need of a unified command."

"We should find out if the Army and the Navy weren't speaking to each other," he declared.

Gust Fells Large Oak; Showers Are Forecast

In the high wind of late yesterday a big oak tree was blown down in the 700 block on Lee street. It fell between two houses and caused little damage. There were several hard gusts of wind in different sections of the city and a 34-mile-per-hour blow was recorded at the airport.

The forecast for today is partly cloudy, continued warm, with widely scattered showers in the late afternoon.

Yesterday the high reading was 91 degrees, while the low was 69.

Clark Batters Counterattacks Of Foe Aside

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Naples, May 29.—(AP)—The battle for Rome—first great capital of Nazi-dominated Europe to fall within range of Allied guns—raged with mounting fury tonight after an Allied wedge had been driven deeply into the enemy's "last-ditch" defense line less than 16 miles from the Eternal City.

Meanwhile, the Vichy radio said the Allies had cut Italian Highway No. 6—The Via Casilina which is the main avenue of retreat for the Germans on the center of the Italian front.

The announcement did not give the location of the break, but the Allies are threatening Valmontone, 22 miles southeast of Rome, and have had this route under artillery fire.

Quoting Berlin military quarters, the radio said that Germans fighting in the Liri valley still would be able to make their withdrawal over mountain paths.

NAZIS BOLSTER

In a desperate effort to hold Rome at least until his battered forces far to the southeast could disengage and be withdrawn to the new line, Field Marshal Albert Kesselring poured reinforcements into a savage series of counterattacks along a 17-mile front from the vicinity of Valmontone to Campoleone at the edge of the Alban hills.

These heavy counterblows slowed but did not halt the advance of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark's British and American Fifth Army troops, who doggedly pressed their attack in the face of flamethrowers and withering artillery and small arms fire.

The Cairo radio said that Allied troops advancing toward Velletri had occupied Lanuvio, four miles to the southwest.

The Greek-language broadcast was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

ASSAULT STRONGPOINTS

Deniel de Luce, of the Associated Press, reported in a front dispatch filed at 6:30 p. m. that American tanks were attacking German strongpoints of armor, artillery and infantry on the slopes of the Alban hills between Campoleone and Lanuvio at a point less than 16 miles south of Rome's outskirts.

He said enemy counterattacks employing as much as a battalion of infantry and four 60-ton Tiger tanks at a crack were beaten back and that tank-led Allied infantry had made progress all day.

Allied Headquarters announced that three of 18 German divisions engaged in the battle had been virtually destroyed since the Allied offensive began May 11, with more than 15,000 in prison cages. Combat strength of enemy divisions now was estimated at 8,000 men.

American and British beachhead forces launched a powerful new drive toward Campoleone—almost due south of Rome—yesterday, and by last night were within a mile of the German stronghold. Other Allied troops smashed through Aprilia, the model farm community which changed hands four times in the early phases of the beachhead fighting several months ago.

Campoleone marked the high tide of the original Allied advance after the beachhead was established over four months ago. A British spearhead was trapped there and fought its way free after suffering heavy losses.

ACTION TO SOUTHEAST

At their furthest surge to the north and east, beachhead forces were fighting tonight within 2,000 yards of Valmontone. Others were battling in the outskirts of Velletri and closing upon Lanuvia, where the Alban hills begin to rise from the Pontine plain.

To the southeast of the rising battle for Rome, Allied beachhead troops drove the enemy out of the mountain towns of Sermoneta and Bassiano, both well north of the Appian Way and the Rome-Naples electric rail line.

French colonials slashed through the hills north of Ville Santo Stefano and captured Monte Siserno, 2,400-foot peak about seven miles south of Frosinone on the Via Casilina.

Lieutenant General Sir Oliver Leese's Eighth Army forces swept westward six miles from Ceprano to Pofi after throwing several bridges across the Liri and Sacco rivers. The town of Arce, at the junction of the Via Casilina and highway 82, appeared ready to fall to Leese's troops, and Santo Padre, four and a half miles to the northeast, had been surrounded.

NAZI GUNS DWINDLE

The French were reported meeting only light resistance in their steady advance through the mountains, and there were indications the Nazis were running short of artillery in several sectors. A German prisoner said tanks had been used as artillery in recent fighting.

At some points it was evident the Germans were retreating with all possible speed, depending upon

Fascism Thrives in U. S. Camps Under Protection, Writer Says

NEW YORK, May 29.—(INS)—"Dangerous enemy aliens," interned since Pearl Harbor, carry on their Fascist way of life behind the barbed wire of American camps. They are protected in this by the extremely liberal interpretation of the Geneva convention adopted by the United States, of which they are quick to take every possible advantage.

These statements are those of Curt Riess, who reveals the inside story of present conditions in American internment camps, backed by affidavits of witnesses and countless letters and reports which have been forwarded to the U. S. government, in the June issue of Cosmopolitan.

Although the Geneva prisoners of war convention of July 27, 1929, did not deal with civilian internees, Riess declared America and Germany arranged following Pearl Harbor to extend its provisions to include civilian personnel. The Nazis know the convention and their rights under it by heart.

The most important rule in the convention, according to Reiss, is one which causes a great deal of trouble, and American officials either have been unable to do anything about it or want to do very little.

The rule, as contained in Article 43, reads: "In every place where there are prisoners of war, they shall be allowed to appoint agents entrusted with representing them directly with the military authorities and protecting powers. This appointment shall be subject to the approval of the military authority."

"It is this representative—or, as he is called, spokesman—around whom all the puzzling activities in our Nazi internment camps are built," Reiss declares. "It is the spokesman who becomes the Fuehrer of the camp. By obtaining the posts of spokesmen, the key men of the party can make sure there is no dissension among the rank and file.

"Up to the beginning of 1944, the most prominent among the German spokesmen was Herr Ernest Kerhof, who carried the unofficial title of 'Gauleiter of Ellis Island.' Most of those interned there felt that he was more powerful than some American officials."

Riess says that Kerhof ran the lives of all the Nazis on Ellis Island, and saw to it that Hitler's birthday was celebrated with all the trimmings—the expense money coming from Germany through the Swiss legation. When it became known that the saboteurs who had come to the U. S. in a U-boat were to be executed, Kerhof ordered 24 hours of general mourning.

"If any inmate of a Nazi camp wants to launch a complaint, he must go to his spokesman, and the latter decides whether the complaint shall be forwarded to Washington," Riess states.

"This state of affairs leads to fantastic situations in the cases of interned anti-Nazis or Jews. They have no choice but to confer with the Nazi spokesmen, some of whom demand the Nazi salute from all who come to them.

"In at least one case, an anti-Nazi succeeded in smuggling a letter out of the camp and getting it

'Bill' Defines Alcoholic As 'Bankrupt Idealist'

By JANE MORGAN.

A lean, lanky guy named "Bill" held the mayor of Atlanta, the chief of police, and a gathering of Atlanta's leading physicians, ministers and businessmen spellbound for an hour with his oratory.

Relating how an idea fostered by himself with the aid of a doctor in Akron, O., has given courage, hope and another chance to more than 12,000 defeated drunks of both sexes during the past 10 years, "Bill," an ex-drunk and co-founder of Alcoholics Anonymous, told the distinguished gathering at a luncheon at the Piedmont hotel yesterday of his own case history. This, he said, embraced 17 years of excessive drinking resulting in financial, moral and physical failure before he found release from his alcoholic problem.

Labeling himself "an interesting antique who has been dry 10 years," and who had no wish to take the limelight or any credit for the organization which the New York Academy of Medicine terms, "a wholesale miracle of the mind," "Bill" told his audience that alcoholism is our fourth largest health problem.

ALCOHOLIC DEFINED

He said that physicians have diagnosed the alcoholic as a bankrupt idealist suffering from a mental obsession for, and a physical allergy to, liquor, caused in most cases by psychological qualities of oversensitiveness, emotional immaturity and a tendency to grandiosity.

Alcoholics Anonymous, as "Bill" explained it, offers a solution for anyone defeated by liquor, who wishes to help himself and then help others, and who will admit that he is not self-sufficient and must rely on a power greater than himself.

"Bill" paid an informal visit to the staff of the Federal penitentiary during the morning to relate the success of the A. A. group formed some time ago at San Quentin prison, where, out of about 25,000 inmates, around 400 are practicing the principles of A. A. As a result of "Bill's" account of how his program is helping the parole boards of other prisons, Warden Sanford invited a member of the Atlanta A. A. group to address a weekly meeting of the inmates within the next 30 days.

"Bill," visiting A. A. groups in this section, will be in Atlanta through today.

"A. A.'s" PRINCIPLES

"I am reminded," said "Bill," in commenting on Dr. George Crane's article on Alcoholics Anonymous in yesterday's Constitution, "to what a great extent A. A. is a co-operative venture. Actually every one of our principles has been given us by either doctors or clergymen. We alcoholics have merely streamlined them so that people like us will accept them."

"Bill," who described yesterday's luncheon as "the biggest turnout since the dinner Rockefeller once gave for A. A.'s in New York," addressed the Atlanta A. A. members and their families at a dinner last night at the Georgian Terrace hotel. He will speak at 12:30 p. m. today at the Kiwanis luncheon at the Ansley, and again at 8 p. m. at an open meeting of the Atlanta A. A. group at their clubhouse at 57 1-2 Broad street.

In addition to her two brothers, Mrs. Jacobs is survived by her mother, Mrs. Willie Pressly.

KING COTTON GOES IN FOR GLAMOR—The same cotton fabrics which used to be relegated to kitchen wear are now being used for every type of clothing from the bathing suit modeled by Alma Ross, left, to the evening dress worn by Virginia Brinkman, right. These cotton fashions were shown yesterday at the Rotary Club style show, in observance of National Cotton Week.

3 Gas Vendors Face Shutdown

At least three Atlanta service stations are facing an order to suspend business following checks by the Office of Price Administration here on gasoline ration bank accounts that disclosed these stations were handling counterfeit coupons.

Names of the stations and of another group of stations facing penalty for accepting unendorsed coupons are expected to be disclosed this week.

Despite repeated warnings from OPA of penalties to be inflicted on station operators accepting gas ration coupons not bearing the license number of the person to whom the coupon was issued, such coupons, worth approximately 10,000 gallons, are redeemed weekly in the Atlanta area, OPA said.

King Cotton Use Not All G. I., Formal Dress in for Its Share

By CECILE DAVIS.

Cotton, which used to be associated with little girls in pigtails and bobby socks, has gone sophisticated.

In fact, King Cotton has gone in for everything from ultra-brief bathing suits to voluminous, ultra-formal evening dresses in the wardrobe of modern Miss America.

NOT ALL G. I. USE

Atlanta Rotarians saw a practical demonstration of one of the most attractive uses of cotton at their weekly meeting yesterday, when Rotarians Ted Forbes and Clarence Elsas presented a cotton style show, with the co-operation of Rich's, Inc. The show was in observance of National Cotton Week.

Although Georgia's million bales of cotton a year, processed in the state's 175 textile mills, are playing a major role in the war effort, this year's cotton fashions are eye-catching proof that cotton has not gone 100 per cent G. I. Besides serving military needs in the manufacture of uniforms, tents, tarpaulins, fabric for airplanes, explosives, and cartridge belts, cotton is taking its place as a definite morale-builder on the home front.

For instance, feminine Victory gardeners are wearing cotton jackets, shirts, and shorts as modeled by one of the mannequins in the Rotary Club style show, which demonstrated the versatility of "Cotton Fashions from Dawn to Dawn."

Miss America is relaxing in cottons, too. Bathing suits, tennis shorts and blouses, the new "short alls" for wear when puttering around the house, and three-piece play suits which are appropriate for golf or badminton, are all being made of the Georgia-produced fabric.

COTTON EVENING WEAR

Most revolutionary of all its uses in milady's wardrobe, cotton now has a new importance in street and evening wear. Modeled in the fashion show were street dresses, cocktail dresses, and full-length formal clothes combining cotton with jersey and satin. Even hats are increasingly utilizing cotton pique, trimmed with grosgrain ribbon.

Following the style show, a brief address was delivered by Harrison Hightower, of Thomaston, president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

$100,000 Blaze Damages Midway at Lakewood Park

By KEELER McCARTNEY.

A short-circuited electric wire has been blamed for a raging fire which swept through at least one-third of the midway at Lakewood Park early yesterday, caused damage estimated at $100,000 and threatened the nearby residential section.

Park night watchmen said the blaze started at about 2:30 a. m. in the tunnel of the Greyhound roller coaster and then spread rapidly with an explosion across the midway to the Old Mill, a storehouse containing 800 cases of beer and several hundred cartons of cigarets, the Run House, the Ferris Wheel, the Merry-Go-Round and several penny pitch concessions.

The Greyhound, Old Mill, Fun House, concessions and store rooms were a complete loss, according to Mike Benton, president of the Southeastern Fair Association. Benton estimated damages at $100,000, most of which was covered by insurance, and said the fire will not interfere with the fair this fall.

WORKERS ON JOB

Work crews were on the job to clear away debris as firemen put out the last sparks at daybreak yesterday, and park officials said the midway was open as usual at 8 o'clock last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mills, whose apartment was under the Greyhound tunnel, barely escaped as flaming ride cars and pieces of heavy timbers crashed through the roof of their home.

Mills, head of the Southern Amusement Company, which operated the Greyhound and Old Mill, had returned home only Saturday from a hospital, where he had been confined with a heart ailment.

The Merry-Go-Round was operated by Russell Dickinson; the Fun House was owned by Carl Mills, a son of Oscar Mills, and the penny pitch concessions were operated by Oscar Mills Jr., another son, who is serving with the Coast Guard.

FIRST-HAND ACCOUNT

"I was standing at the upper end of the midway a little while after the 2 o'clock trolley pulled out when I smelled something like rubber burning," Claude Hayes, 18, a nightwatchman, told Police Lieutenant Reggie McLean and P. E. Jones. "I called "Uncle Willie" Morris, the park nightwatchman, and told him we had better go over to the grandstand and take a look around.

"Then I saw a flash in the Greyhound tunnel and swoosh! Fire blew in every direction. Every electric wire in the place flared up and it looked like the whole place was afire.

"I called the fire department and 'Uncle Willie' and I ran down to Mr. Mills' house. I helped Mrs. Mills get out and just as 'Uncle Willie' came out the door with Mr. Mills the Greyhound cars fell and hit the roof and the roof fell."

Scalding tar fell on Mills as he was leaving the building, causing slight burns on the head. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mills had time to dress only in bathrobes and house shoes.

FIRE WAGONS RUSHED

Ten fire wagons, four pumps and a flood light wagon were rushed to the park in response to two help calls as the flames gained headway. Assistant Chief W. B. Fanning responded with the first help call to direct operations.

There is little chance of the rides being replaced soon, according to Benton and Virgil Meigs, secretary of the fair association.

They Greyhound, an all-wood structure, was built in 1916 at a cost of $60,000, and had become a permanent attraction at Lakewood. The Old Mill, which was demolished by fire in 1939, was rebuilt at a cost of near $20,000.

About the only Mills possession left untouched by the fire was the weekend ride and concession receipts, which were stored in a safe in the Mills apartment. The outside of the safe was barely blistered, so swiftly did the flame sweep throuh the structure, but several thousand dollars inside was intact.

Benton estimated that at least one-third of the midway attractions were destroyed in the fire, but added that the park will be open at nights as usual. He said the burned out concessions, if not replaced, would provide additional space for fair exhibits this fall.

After returning to the United Sates on February 6, 1944, he was hospitalized in Letterman General hospital, San Francisco, Cal., and Ashburn General hospital, Dallas, Texas.

Brewer Seeks Whereabouts of Mrs. Helen Conner

Ernest Brewer, executive secretary to Mayor Hartsfield, appeared stymied yesterday in an effort to deliver a number of snapshots to Mrs. Helen Conner, widow of the late W. J. B. Conner, chief gunner's mate of the United States Naval forces, who was killed in the South Pacific.

According to a letter from G. M. Blakeley, of Oakland, Maine, who once served with Conner, Mrs. Conner is supposed to be a resident of Atlanta, but Brewer can find no trace of her.

Blakeley said he read of Conner's death in the February 6 issue of the Boston Post, and rifled his own picture album to get snapshots of the dead man for his widow. He sent them along, asking Brewer to deliver them.

Brewer is ready, but has found no clue as to Mrs. Conner's whereabouts.

WhiteProposes Paving Project

City and Fulton county co-operation in repairing Piedmont avenue from Ponce de Leon avenue southward to the state capitol will be asked of city council's public works committee Thursday afternoon. Cost of improving the 7,360-foot stretch is estimated at $24,534, half of which would be paid by each of the governments.

The project would provide an improved artery from the city limits southward to the capitol and would enable traffic entering the city from the north to proceed on the same thoroughfare into the center of the city and then branch into a widened and improved Memorial drive to the south. This would enable northbound and southbound traffic to bypass the central congested areas of the city.

Proposed by Councilman John A. White, of the fifth ward, the new undertaking is regarded as a progressive move to expedite traffic and to relieve heavy traffic on parallel boulevards.

DeKalb May Have Opportunity To Vote on Beer Issue in July

DeKalb county citizens may have an opportunity at the forthcoming July primary to express their opinion on whether to permit continued sale of beer in the county.

A special session of the grand jury revoked a resolution of last March for discontinuance of beer licenses in a new presentment read in court yesterday recommended that the question be referred to the people.

Judge James C. Davis, who called the special session, told the jurors that there was considerable difference of opinion on the question, and that in his opinion the citizens of the county should be permitted to vote on it.

After hearing the charge by Judge Davis yesterday, the jurors held a short secret session, revoked the recommendation made at their last meeting, then recommended that the county's Democratic executive committee place the question on the ballot.

The presentment was signed by J. J. Scott, foreman of the grand jury, who also signed the original recommendation that no beer and wine licenses be renewed.

Miss Michael Retains Credit for 'Poppy' Idea

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—Twenty-four years after the American Legion adopted the red poppy of Flanders as a memorial flower for the World War dead a controversy still persists over who originated the idea.

The Legion's records show, on the eve of another Memorial day, that several women have sought recognition as the original "Poppy Lady." All but three of the claims have been discounted.

They are those of Miss Moina Michael, of Athens, Ga., who died May 10 at the age of 74; Madame A. Guerin, of New York, a French woman who lectured in the United States at the outbreak of the war, and Mrs. Mary Hanecy, Milwaukee, Wis., mother.

Officially, the Legion never has taken a stand on the matter, but it has paid tribute to Miss Michael and its records indicate she generally has been recognized both by the Legion and the Auxiliary.

Mrs. Gwendolyn W. Mac Dowell, national secretary of the Auxiliary, says that group has not entered the controversy because it began before the Auxiliary took over sale of poppies in 1925. However, at its national convention in Boston in 1930, the Auxiliary presented to Miss Michael the Distinguished Service Medal, its highest award.

Whoever may have conceived the idea first, there seems to be no argument that the inspiration for it came from Poet John McCrae's famous lines:

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
"Between the crosses, row on row—"

Miss Michael, who fixed November 9, 1918, as the birthdate of the Flanders Field Memorial Poppy idea, said she largely was inspired by the poem.

Madame Guerin, president of a French antique company, in New York, said the idea came to her while she was reciting the poem in an address before the first convention of the Gold Star Mothers at Baltimore in 1919.

"All at once," she recalled, "I realized that the Flanders fields poppies were the symbol befitting the heroes of the war . . . . I proposed the idea and it was accepted at the convention with great motion."

At that time, Madame Guerin said, she was lecturing in the United States, representing Madame Millerand, the wife of the President of the French republic, and raising money for the rehabilitation of French children. Madame Irenee du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., was the president of the committee in the U. S.

SAMPLE POPPY MADE

"Plans were made," she added, "that I should use the Flanders poppies as a means to raise 1,000,000 francs for the children of devastated France, and it was decided that in each state one of the Gold Star Mothers would be my state president of the Flanders' fields poppy days . . .

"Immediately I made a silk sample of a Flanders fields poppy and we had 10,000 silk poppies made in Baltimore and two weeks after the convention we had the first poppy day in the streets of Baltimore."

A historical booklet on the poppy published by the Legion Auxiliary in 1936, gives this version:

"The first instance of wearing poppies in honor of the war dead occurred in New York city, November 9, 1918, when Miss Moina Michael, of Athens, Ga., who was serving on the staff of the Y. M. C. A. overseas branch, distributed poppies to men attending the 21st conference of the U. M. C. A. The first poppy was sold publicly on the streets of Milwaukee in connection with the reception of the 33rd Division, in June, 1919.

"The inspiration of Miss Michael, the poppy was adopted as the official memorial flower by the Georgia department of the American Legion in August, 1920. Georgia delegates were instructed to present a resolution to the Legion's national convention in Cleveland that fall to make the flower the official memorial flower of the national organization."

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

The Legion's records show the Georgia department's resolution was adopted after tabling of a similar one presented by the American and French Children's League, with which Madame Guerin was associated.

The Legion's records also show that Madame Guerin attended the convention and addressed the delegates following adoption of the poppy as a memorial flower.

She was invited to the conclave, she said, after she had spoken at the Legion's California state convention.

"They told me to write to Colonel Galbraith who was to run for national president," she said. "I knew him and wrote to him explaining my idea. He wired me that he was making a reservation for me at the headquarters of the Legion in Cleveland and that he thought a national Flanders poppy day would be, each year, the best memoriam given to their comrades. . . .

"The Flanders fields poppy idea was adopted first by the committee of the 48 states presidents to whom I spoke. . . . It was accepted unanimously by them as, later on, it was accepted by the convention from the platform."

Later, at the suggestion of Legion officials, Madame Guerin said, she went to Canada and later to Europe to popularize the poppy day in Allied countries.

MISS MICHAEL HONORED

Regarding Mrs. Hanecy's claim, a letter written January 27, 1940, by Frank E. Samuel, then national adjutant, to Adjutant G. H. Stordock, of Wisconsin, said in part:

"The national executive committee by resolution in November, 1934, indorsed Miss Michael, 'the original poppy lady,' for the Woodrow Wilson Memorial Foundation award for 'meritorious service to democracy and welfare.' . . .

"In 1932 a resolution prepared over the signature of the national commander and the national adjutant said: 'Whereas, in the year 1919, a Milwaukee mother . . . conceived the idea of the manufacture and sale of poppies on the streets preceding Memorial Day, and that from this suggestion the first poppy day ever held in the United States was conducted in Milwaukee, Wis., Saturday, May 19, 1920 . . . Resolved, that we do hereby convey upon Mrs. Mary Hanecy, of Milwaukee, Wis., this certificate of appreciation.'

"Summing it all up, from our records, you may note that while Miss Michael is generally credited with originating the poppy as a memorial flower, Mrs. Hanecy is likewise credited with originating the idea of the annual poppy day sale."

STYLES ON DISPLAY—Merchants and buyers from all quarters of the south are gathered at the Henry Grady hotel for the Southeastern Travelers' Exhibition, an annual showing of wearing apparel. Here, Mrs. Jerry Haas, of Plant City, Fla., exhibits a new coat to Sam Joseph, center, president of the organization staging the big show, and W. E. Oettinger, of Atlanta, secretary.

Arnall Opposes Primary Laws

Governor Arnall will oppose any efforts to retain in the state constitution provisions affecting party primaries in Georgia.

Commenting on a move by the Atlanta League of Women Voters, the Governor, who is chairman of the commission redrafting the constitution, said yesterday that any such laws affecting primaries have no place in the constitution.

The commission recently voted to drop from the constitution regulations on primaries. The action was taken after the United States supreme court ruled that Negroes can vote in the Texas Democratic primary. Members of the Georgia commisison said the supreme court's ruling on a Texas primary was possible since Texas primary regulations were part of the state election law and not merely a party matter.

In asking that the constitution retain provisions for primaries, the league said political parties need this supervision.

Buyers Attend Clothing Show

Buyers from retail stores throughout the south are seeking fall merchandise and merchants from throughout America are doing their level, but sometimes hopeless, best to provide it, at the showing now in progress at the Henry Grady hotel of the Southeastern Travelers' Exhibitors.

Four whole floors of the hotel, with a sizeable overflow in the Dixie ballroom, are devoted to merchandise displays from several hundred exhibitors, and the four-day market is expected to attract double the number of buyers that have been in attendance at any previous event of this nature here.

Despite what is to the layman an extravagantly complete line of merchandise, both merchants and buyers in attendance are commenting on the shortages existing in many lines, according to Sam Joseph, of Jacksonville, president of the organization.

The display was officially opened yesterday morning and will continue until 2 p. m. Thursday. Exhibits are open from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. daily.

The annual banquet and election of officers will be held Tuesday night at the Ansley hotel. Present officers, besides Joseph, include Harold Loeb, Morton, Miss., first vice president; W. H. Stott, Sanford, N. C., second vice president; W. E. Oettinger, Atlanta, secretary, and Irving Samuel, Atlanta, treasurer. E. M. Cousins, of Atlanta and Birmingham, is manager of the show.

President Joseph said yesterday that the proposed big postwar furniture and merchandise mart, announced in The Constitution Sunday, would be a welcome addition to the marketing facilities of the south. "Such an establishment," he said, "if brought to completion, would give all merchants and buyers a convenient, made-to-order center for their selling and buying activities—without taxing the hotel facilities of Atlanta as they now do."

Mayor William B. Hartsfield was accompanied by Roy Ulrich, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and Robinson W. Scholling, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, when he appeared at the opening ceremonies yesterday morning.

Eleven southern states are represented among the exhibitors, as well as many firms from other sections.

tured by a Chinese force.

On the Indo-Burma front, operations have been impeded in the Manipur hills by heavy rains, the communique said. Allied troops "gained all first objectives in their attack on Abadura" in the Kohima area yesterday, the bulletin said, "but further progress was held up by heavy fire from the rear defenses combined with the difficulties caused by the weather. The operation continues."

Japanese Drive Threatens Siangyin

CHUNGKING, May 29.—(AP)—A new Japanese drive southward from Yoyang (Yochow) in the widespread Hunan province offensive is threatening Siangyin, 30 miles north of the Canton-Hankow railway city of Changsha, Chinese field dispatches said today.

Siangyin's fall would protect the right flank of the main Japanese body advancing toward Changsha from newly-gained positions south of the Sinchiang river, crossed Saturday night by the Japanese in a 20-mile drive.

The main body was reported to have advanced more than seven miles from its new position toward Changsha, as other prongs of the offensive fanned westward toward central China's rice bowl, and eastward to attack Chinese concentrations in southern Hupeh province.

Enemy troops in the newest thrust to the south were reported to have crossed the 2,000-square-mile Tungting lake in motor launches, and to have pushed inland toward Siangyin, slightly over 50 miles southwest of Yoyang.

Thrice repelled from Changsha by forces of General Hsueh Yueh, governor of Hunan and "Little Tiger" of central China, the Japanese appeared aiming at a fourth battle there, and ultimately at complete control of the Canton-Hankow railway.

In a drive to protect the left flank of their main body, other Japanese troops have struck southeastward from Yoyang and reached the outskirts of Tungcheng, in southern Hupeh province 45 miles southeast of Yoyang.

Kimmel Demands Right To Testify Before Public

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Declaring the "whole story of Pearl Harbor" has not been told, Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel has demanded a "free, open and public" courtmartial "at the earliest practicable date," it was disclosed today.

Kimmel's demand was made in a letter released by Senator Ferguson, Republican, Michigan, as the Senate Judiciary Committee voted to act next Monday on Ferguson's resolution fixing September 8 as the deadline for the trial's start.

The House Rules Committee meanwhile approved legislation "directing that the trial of Kimmel, Major General Walter C. Short and any others charged with responsibility for this nation's greatest military disaster be held before June 7, 1945.

2-YEAR WAIT

Kimmel's letter said:

"For two and a half years I have waited for the Navy Department to bring me to trial. The report of the Roberts commission does not tell the whole story of Pearl Harbor."

He referred to the presidential commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts, which made a study of the Pearl Harbor disaster and reported:

"The Japanese attack was a complete surprise to the commanders and they failed to make suitable dispositions to meet such an attack. Each failed properly to evaluate the seriousness of the situation."

Kimmel, writing from Bronxville, N. Y., declared he was barred from some hearings before the Roberts commission and said:

KEPT IN DARK

"For more than two years I was kept in the dark as to what went on at those hearings."

Ferguson also released a copy of a letter Kimmel wrote to the late Navy Secretary Frank Knox on September 7, 1943, in which he said:

"Delay in the matter is opposed to my personal interest, since the passage of time and the circumstances and casualties of war and of the period following may make it difficult, perhaps impossible, to assemble and produce the evidence and the witnesses required.

"I have at all times been anxious to subordinate my own interests to the national welfare, which appears to require that my trial be delayed."

Accompanying this letter was a waiver of the statute of limitations. The admiral said he did not sign the waiver in the form submitted to him by the secretary, but changed it to "assume that my hearing would be in open court."

Constitution Links Iowan And Missing Atlanta Flyer

Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Hamilton, of 345 Clifford avenue, N. E., are awaiting a message from W. H. Cornelius, of Glidden, Iowa, whose son was a member of the same air crew as their son, Hugh, reported missing over Belgium, after a story in The Constitution established contact between the two.

Cornelius appealed to Postmaster Lon Livingston for the Hamiltons' address, and Livingston asked The Constitution to help locate them. They saw a story in Sunday's paper.

Staff Sergeant Hugh Hamilton, 21, a graduate of Boys' High school and tail gunner on a Flying Fortress, was reported missing over Belgium on April 27. He enlisted in the Air Corps in February, 1943, and went to England early this year.

2 Governors React Coolly To Georgia's Rate Suit

HERSHEY, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Governors of North Carolina and Florida were somewhat cool today toward a move by Georgia's Governor Ellis Arnall to have his state attack the problem of freight rates through a United States supreme court suit against the railroads.

Both executives expressed a preference for a current fight before the Interstate Commerce Commission for rate equalization. Alabama's chief executive declined comment on Arnall's proposal.

Arnall announced Saturday night that he had instructed the Georgia attorney general to file such court action, asserting "the prevailing discriminatory freight rate system impeding the development of the south should be ended and the trade barriers erected against the south should be abrogated."

Governor J. Melville Broughton of North Carolina, here to attend the National Conference of Governors, said he "wouldn't care to comment on what Georgia has done."

"I am chairman of the class rate committee of the Southern Governors' Conference," Broughton added. "The conference has initiated proceedings before the Interstate Commerce Commission for uniformity of freight rates. The case will be argued in June. We expect to follow our case through the Interstate Commerce Commission which we consider the proper tribunal. We are presenting it on its merits and think we will win because we've got a good case."

Governor Spessard I. Holland of Florida commented:

"I would assume there is no conflict in Georgia's supreme court case with that taken by the Southern Conference of Governors and I recognize Georgia has a peculiar and particular interest growing out of ownership of a railroad which I understand is the basis of its suit.

"Florida has even greater interest than other southern states in the ICC case because, in addition to injurious southern class rate structure, we suffer under an additional penalty rate called the 'Florida arbitrary' which imposes a 15 per cent increase above the southern rate on mileage in Florida north and south in the peninsula."

Governor Chauncey M. Sparks of Alabama declined a statement until he had time to study the Georgia proposal.

demolitions, mines and snipers to hold off the pursuing Allied forces. Nazi parachute troops were fighting stubbornly, however, in the Arce area.

The three German divisions listed by Allied headquarters as having been virtually destroyed were the 71st, 94th and 715th. The 94th was badly chopped up by the American 85th and 88th Divisions of drafted men who were getting their baptism of fire.

A captured enemy report written by Lieutenant Colonel Ziegler, commander of the 361st Grenadiers opposing the Eighth Army, spoke of that regiment's severe casualties:

"Our heavy losses are the token of the hardness of the battle," the Nazi officer wrote. "More than half the men of the Third Battalion have paid the price for their bravery with their life's blood."

Allied fighter-bombers maintained their destructive campaign behind the lines, flying more than 2,000 sorties yesterday as they wrecked another 200 German vehicles and three tanks. Of 15 Nazi planes sighted over the battle area, four were destroyed.

It was announced officially that Allied warships ranging along the coast had poured more than 7,000 shells into the enemy's positions since the offensive began May 11. Yesterday a French cruiser scored hits on German artillery emplacements north of the beachhead.

may expect confidence and backing at home.

The senate committee evidently did not commit itself to any specific line of procedure or to any particular kind of organization but rather told Hull, it is understood, that it approved generally of the preliminary work he has done and desires him to continue with it.

When an international agreement is arrived at, that will have to be submitted for approval on its merits.

Presumably the secretary will follow up his statement with an invitation under the Moscow declaration for the other three leading Allied powers to send representatives for the informal discussions which he proposed. The Moscow agreement, which Hull signed last October as the American representative, pledged the nations to establish "at the earliest practicable date a general international organization."

BIG FOUR IN CONTROL

Whatever form this organization may take, it is expected to have at the top, at least at the outset, a United Nations council consisting of the four main nations. The way would be left open for other nations to join the council as they become able to discharge their full share of responsibility for safeguarding peace. Under such a provision France might qualify sometime after liberation.

Below the council, according to some expert opinion here, would come a United Nations assembly to be composed initially of the United Nations and possibly the so-called Associated Nations and eventually of such other countries as would qualify under the definition of being "peace-loving" and capable of friendly international conduct.

Thus, it is expected, a reconstituted Germany some day would be able to make a place for itself at the world's assembly of nations.

USE OF FORCE

The exploratory talks which Hull projected in tonight's statement would not be binding on any of the nations participating, but would seek to define the "area of agreement" among the four powers and later the other United Nations and to discover the limit to which they might act jointly in setting up the security agency.

Some officials here believe this would allow the creation of a permanent United Nations Council in the near future.

Dr. Bateman Promoted To Lieutenant Colonel

SANDERSVILLE, Ga., May 29. Dr. Needham B. Bateman, prominent Atlanta physician, has been given the rank of lieutenant colonel, according to a message received by his mother, Mrs. N. B. Bateman Sr., who resides in western Washington county.

Colonel Bateman, a native of this county, attended Sandersville High school and graduated from the University of Georgia Medical school. Following his graduation he has been located in Atlanta in private practice.

Atlanta Colonel Is Leading Way To Eternal City

Mrs. Bogardus Cairns, of 326 Adams street, Decatur, is watching with unusual interest the progress of the United States Armies on their march to Rome.

Mrs. Cairns learned yesterday through The Constitution that her husband, Lieutenant Colonel Cairns, is in command of the vanguard leading the way to the Eternal City.

The last Mrs. Cairns heard from her husband, he was at Cassino, and prior to that, he took part in the Battle of Tunisia.

"I thought he was in the middle of the battle around Cassino until I saw the story by Daniel De Luce from Artena, which The Constitution published yesterday," Mrs. Cairns said.

"Now that I know where he is, I want him to be the first man to enter Rome, and then I want him to hurry back home, for he has been gone a long, long time."

Atlantan Dies Under Truck

The fourteenth traffic fatality for the year occurred yesterday when George Wright, 45, Negro, of 381 Auburn avenue, N. E., jumped from a truck at Luckie and Simpson streets, lost his balance and fell under the rear wheels.

14 THIS YEAR
8 This Time Last Year

Wright, according to Policemen A. E. Davis and E. S. Faucett, was riding in a truck driven by another Negro, William P. Matthews, of 346 Fraser street, N. E. Matthews told police that as he drove north on Luckie street the traffic light turned red on him near Simpson street. On such short notice he said he couldn't stop the truck, so he turned it into Simpson street, which inclines downhill at that point. Wright became frightened, according to Matthews, jumped to the street and in so doing fell back under the rear wheels. He was dead on arrival at Grady hospital.

The police made no case against Matthews.

Fulton's Child Welfare To Add Two Workers

Authorization to add two trained employes to the staff of the child welfare division of the Fulton county public welfare department was passed at a board meeting yesterday, Administrator Douglas Wood announced.

The purpose of the addition to the staff will be to make adoption investigations requested by the superior court through the state department, Wood added. The work has formerly been handled by private agencies, he said, but with two new members of the staff, the county would be able to handle all the investigations.

Georgia's contribution to the Army of the United States, now numbering nearly 7,700,000 officers and enlisted personnel, is 161,978 up to January 1, 1944, Headquarters, Fourth Service Command, revealed here. This figure includes 1,987 women.

Americans To Prevent Wars in Future--Dewey

HERSHEY, Pa., May 29.—(AP)—Governor Dewey, of New York, declared tonight that the American people were determined "to join in preventing future wars" and said "we must not again sit on the sidelines as mere observers and commentators" while war lords plan aggression.

Dewey, considered leading possibility for the Republican nomination, said also in an address before the National Conference of Governors that civilians were "worried about inefficiencies and bungling" on the home front.

The preservation of wartime unity in the postwar period "is the vital problem of our time," he said and added:

"While there has been a maze of regimentation, some necessary, some inexcusable, our strength at home has come wholly from the genius of our free men in industry and the devotion of our workers and our farmers to their jobs. Our success or failure after the war will depend on whether we, as a nation, take to heart the lesson the war has taught us.

"If we permit the continuance of the regimentation which some so earnestly desire, we shall fail. We cannot practice in peace the centralization which brought totalitarianism to our enemies and be either free or successful."

Dewey said that in the prewar years "we experienced 10 years of retrogression in many important respects" and the people lost confidence in themselves.

"We had a 10-year depression, ended only by the feverish and deadly stimulus of war," he said. "We had never before experienced a depression from which we did not quickly rebound to greater progress. No material reason was adequate to explain what happened.

"With restoration of faith in ourselves and our system, with hard work and an end to quarreling, the American people will again go forward."

In his discussion of international affairs, the second time in a month he dwelt on foreign policy, Dewey said the people were "united upon the proposition that our foreign affairs must be so conducted that disasters like the present one will not recur."

ber giving evidence of the weight of the attack.

The German air force fought back desperately and battles filled the clear summer skies.

The Ninth Air Force sent its largest number of squadrons to lead the tactical assault from Britain on French and Belgian bridges and an enemy airfield 80 miles north of Paris. Four hundred American Marauders and Havocs staged the raid.

Follow-up reconnaissance showed one bridge broken completely, another wrecked and a third weakened by a row of bomb craters across it.

Mitchells, Bostons and Marauders swept into France to attack military objectives and the railroad yards at Antwerp, Belgium, while rocket Typhoons tackled an electric plant at Tingry, near Boulogne. Thunderbolt fighter-bombers raided an air field at Lorient, and another near Brest late in the day.

The usual after-supper raiding was interrupted by violent thunderstorms over the strait.

Unlike their big brothers, the Ninth Air Force bombers in their 16th operation in 11 days, failed to see a single enemy plane but ran into flak. One Marauder was missing.

In its last visit to Poznan, in April, the Eighth Air Force left the largest workshop and three other buildings in an FW-190 components plant either destroyed or severely damaged, and today's return trip probably was designed to finish the job.

The Paris radio in a propaganda broadcast claimed that 4,480 persons have been killed, 8,000 injured and 100,000 left homeless in raids on France since Friday.

to the proper authorities in Washington. He objected to giving the Hitler salute and to being present at Nazi shows ridiculing United Nations leaders.

"A few days later the camp spokesman ordered him to his office. The smuggled letter was on the spokesman's desk. On it was a notation from the officer in charge asking the Nazi spokesman to investigate the charges."

KINDNESS HATED

The reason that such incidents take place in American internment camps, Riess contends, is that the United States was not prepared for the task of keeping enemy aliens in custody. He says there is more to it than barbed wire—the accent is on psychological preparedness.

"There are numerous cases of American officers who have been treating Nazi internees with kindness, hoping to convince them of the merits of democracy," Reiss declares. He adds:

"These idealists would be flabbergasted if they could hear what the Nazis say among themselves about such kindness, the Nazis do not understand kindness—they consider it weakness. They are only impressed by those who can speak their own language."

Policeman Is Accused Of Careless Shooting

Patrolman K. A. Wooster, long regarded as the nemesis of criminals and a stickler for law observance, is slated to face trial Thursday night on charges of carelessly discharging his pistol in disregard for the safety of spectators, and of neglect of duty.

According to charges prepared yesterday by Police Chief Hornsby, Wooster shot a dog belonging to Mrs. George W. Himilbright at or near 425 Atwood avenue, S. W., on May 16 and the shot endangered several persons. Wooster also is accused of abandoning his post of duty on a personal errand. Wooster is not under suspension pending a hearing of the charges.

FOR SHERIFF
WIN WITH GOODWIN

Some sixty days ago I announced my candidacy for Sheriff of Fulton County, subject to the WHITE PRIMARY of July 4, 1944. In the light of certain happenings, which have shocked the good people of Fulton County, I think the WHITE PRIMARY announcement most important.

The WHITE PRIMARY is something we should keep. It is sacred to us. It is something our fathers bequeathed to us, and expected us to cherish. It is the main plank in my platform.

If the people of Fulton County elect me to the office of Sheriff, I shall do everything in my power to preserve the WHITE PRIMARY, and to protect our good women of Fulton County.

GOODWIN WILL WIN

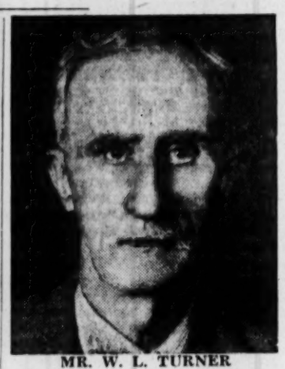
PAINS IN ARMS SOON RELIEVED, MR. TURNER PRAISES RETONGA

Distress From Acid Indigestion And Sluggish Elimination Also Promptly Relieved, States Grateful Atlanta Citizen. Tells About His Case.



MR. W. L. TURNER

Gratefully giving Retonga full credit for their prompt relief often after years of suffering, hundreds of well-known men and women throughout this section are praising this famous medicine for relieving their distress from indigestion, nervousness, weak, rundown feeling, sleeplessness, muscular pains, loss of appetite, weight, and strength, and similar debilitating symptoms due to loss of appetite, insufficient flow of digestive juices in the stomach, constipation and need of Vitamin B-1 for digestion, nerves, and strength. For instance, Mr. W. L. Turner, well-known resident of 1154 Martin St., Atlanta, gratefully states:

"After the relief Retonga brought me I can hardly say enough in praise of it: For about three years it seemed that nothing I ate agreed with me, and at times I was in so much distress from sour indigestion and gas in my stomach that I would have to gasp for breath. If I slept as much as four or five hours at night I considered myself fortunate. My appetite was so poor that I did not want to eat at all. For the past year or more I suffered from very severe pains in the muscles of my arms and shoulders, and my elimination was so sluggish that I had to depend on laxatives. I tried one medicine and treatment after another until it seemed like I was about at the end of my row.

"It did not take Retonga long to give me relief. My appetite picked up and I began to eat substantial meals without suffering afterward. I sleep from seven to nine hours every night and get up feeling fine. The sluggish elimination and the pains in my arms and shoulders have been relieved and I hardly know when I felt as good as I do now. If anyone suffering as I did will try Retonga, I am confident they will thank me for telling them about it."

Mr. Turner is a member of the Baptist Church and has two sons in the Armed Services. He is a well-known cabinet maker by profession. Scores of your neighbors and friends are praising Retonga. The Retonga representative at the Square Deal Drug Store, 10 N. Broad St., opposite The Arcade, will gladly tell you all about this noted medicine without obligation.—(adv.)

As Others See Georgia's Governor

Governor Ellis Arnall's action in taking the south's rail rate case to the supreme court is attracting nationwide attention, both to the discriminatory rate structure and Georgia's young chief executive himself.

"If this fellow Arnall keeps talking," writes Publisher Martin Andersen on the front page of the Orlando, Fla., Sentinel, "he'll wind up a vice president or he'll wind up in the political ash-can. There are no fence-straddling, half-measure, pious words in Arnall's vocabulary. When that guy speaks, he sputters pyrotechnics which rise out of Georgia to illuminate the whole country's political skies. Arnall reminds us of these young American pilots: They're so young they have no imaginative fear of death. Youth looks death in the face sneers at it and flies on into victory or defeat. In victory, youth finds elation and another day's work; in defeat or death, youth realizes it is expendable. Arnall is something like that."

"No doubt, Governor Arnall was just talking, just ribbing some of the Tories," Andersen says of Arnall's suggestion that both national conventions be abolished. "The conventions, both of them, of course, will be held. Governor Arnall knows this as well as anyone. But sometimes the odd and novel presentation of the facts makes a deep and lasting impression. If Governor Arnall had merely expressed his opinion that Mr. Roosevelt would be elected by acclamation and that Mr. Hoover would or already had picked Mr. Dewey to carry the G. O. P. standard, those words would have riled no one in particular; in fact, those words would hardly have gotten across the Georgia line. But the bold suggestion from a southern Governor advocating abandonment of two conventions, with no admission of levity or ridicule, made the press wires."

But Arnall's strategy is not confined to verbal block-busters and innuendo needlings. That fact today is being recognized and appreciated throughout the length and breadth of a south which too long has suffered economic discriminations.

"Turning from the political front," continues Andersen, "he flank attacks through his state legal department. This week he instructed his attorney talent to file in the United States supreme court an attack on freight discriminations. Noting that the supreme court activity in setting aside discriminations, including, perhaps the discrimination against colored citizens at the polls, Arnall of Georgia thinks this is the time to dynamite those freight differentials. While the court is in the groove to play fair to all races and all colors, it may also play fair geographically, admitting no north, no south, when it comes to estimating transportation rates.

"Arnall will, Arnall must be heard.

"He is the Voice of the South, today.

"He may not live a long political life, but there'll never be a dull moment in the political life he is living today."

Civic Center

All over Georgia, judging from the state press, various communities are laying their postwar plans.

Atlanta and Fulton county, it seems to us, should follow suit by getting together with the state and working out details for the long-discussed civic center in the capitol-city hall-courthouse area. Since the days of Grady, to be sure, The Constitution has been advocating action on this particular project. But never before has the time for action seemed so propitious.

—GIVE BLOOD—WA. 9635—

Police Unions

Almost overlooked in the series of excellent speeches which featured last week's convention of the Georgia Association of County Commissioners was a resolution, unanimously adopted, opposing the "organization of police and law enforcement officers into any form of union or group affiliated with an outside organization."

Certainly that is one resolution in which even the most ardent friends of labor can and will concur.

It was because he so well expressed the sentiment of the general public that Calvin Cooledge was catapulted into the national limelight by his declaration, during the course of the infamous Boston police strike, that no public servant has the right to strike against the government anywhere, anytime.

—GIVE BLOOD—WA. 9635—

North Carolina Chooses

The citizens of North Carolina are to be congratulated upon their choice of Major Gregg Cherry, of Gastonia, to succeed able Governor J. M. Broughton in the state's executive office.

As a state legislator for many years, former state Democratic chairman and state American Legion commander, Cherry is, as the Charlotte News puts it, "a natural successor in the line of sound and progressive governors of recent years."

The real victory in the state's senate race was won, of course, several months ago when Robert R. (Our Bob) Reynolds, foreseeing defeat, announced his retirement.

Reynolds' withdrawal left the field to two former governors, Cameron Morrison and Clyde R. Hoey, personal and political intimates and both ably qualified for the post. Hoey ran up an impressive victory in the primary although voters had nought but veneration for the 74-year-old Morrison who has served the state so ably, so long.

The people of Georgia, who only lately have learned the benefits which accrue from electing qualified administrators rather than rabble-rousing politicians to public office can but hope to emulate North Carolina's example in the matter of "sound and progressive governors."

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

(The Constitution welcomes letters from its readers. They must be signed, should not exceed 200 words.)

A Story

Editor, Constitution: The majority report of the Judiciary Committee of the senate on the Montgomery Ward case and their refusal to hear Attorney General Biddle or anyone representing the government's side of the case reminds one of the story of an Irish justice of the peace.

It was before an Irish trial justice. The evidence was all in and the plaintiff's attorney had made a long, eloquent and logical argument. Then the defendant's attorney took the floor. "What you doing?" asked the justice, as the lawyer began. "Going to present our side of the case," replied the lawyer. "I don't want to hear both sides argued. It has a tendency to confuse the court." So the defendant's lawyer sat down.

It is to be noted that the chairman of the Judiciary Committee has an Irish name.

Dies and FBI

Editor, Constitution:

Congratulations on your editorial of May 25. Only you could have made it much stronger. This reader has often wondered why the Dies Committee, when we already have the nonpartisan, nonpolitical FBI.

Hoover Writes

Editor, Constitution: It was very kind of you to write your editorial "A Comforting Thing, the FBI" which appeared on May 13, 1944, in The Atlanta Constitution.

Frequently our bureau receives unusual cases such as the one you mentioned and it is most gratifying to have a journalist comment editorially upon them in a vein designed to convince the public of the futility of engaging in activities contrary to our laws. Thank you for your thought in this regard.

Hope for Mr. Martin

Editor, Constitution: I notice Mr. McGill says that Harold Martin will be back soon. Mr. McGill's description of Mr. Martin makes one wonder why he (Mr. Martin) chose the Marine Corps if he is as easy going and relaxed as Mr. McGill says, for the Marines are never relaxed after their training. But his description of Mr. Martin reminds me of my own son, who is now a Marine sergeant. He was the lazy, easy going kind—never in a hurry about anything until he enlisted in the Marine Corps when he was 21 years old. He is now in the Central Pacific and from the letters we get from him he isn't that easy going, relaxed boy any more. The Marine Corps made a fine, strong man, out of my "little boy." So there is hope for Mr. Martin, and I am glad he preferred the Marines in which to serve his country, and I will watch eagerly for his columns.

Orchids to Ollie

Editor, Constitution:

To Ollie Reeve's rhyme a day
I'd like to toss a big bouquet.
The way he rhymes with ease and grace
Makes me feel sort of out of place
When, timidly, I take in hand
My pen and try to understand
Why he can do it and I can't.
(It makes me want to rave and rant.)
Really and truly, I like his style—
Pomes that make a body smile
And feel a glow 'way down inside.
Some to Shakespeare point with pride
And I'll admit he had the stuff
Back in those days, it's true enough.
But when it comes to charm and wit
It looks to me from where I sit
That Ollie's tops—the berries—he rates—
In other words—I think he's great.

GEORGIA EDITORS SAY:

RECALLING A JINGLE
(Albany Herald)

The still silent Mr. Dewey does not yet have enough pledged delegates to assure him of the Republican nomination, though there is every reason to believe he soon will have them. He may then let us know whether he chooses to run.

There comes to mind a jingle inspired by another Dewey who flashed like a meteor across the world heavens in May, 1898. It ran, according to our recollection, as follows:

O, dewy was the morning
Upon the first of May,
And Dewey was the admiral
Down in Manila Bay;
And dewy were the Regent's eyes,
Those royal orbs of blue;
And dew we feel discouraged?
I dew not think we dew.

The "royal orbs of blue" mentioned in that Spanish-American war jingle were the eyes of the Regent of Spain, the mother of the boy king of that country, whose Asiatic fleet was annihilated in the Battle of Manila Bay.

So now, to bring history down to date, it may be in order to paraphrase:

O, Dewey is the silent one
Up yon' in Al-ba-nee,
And dewy are his prospects for
To lead the GOP;
But though he dew his dewty—
Dew the very best he can—
He's not dew to lease the White House,
For he can't oust Superman.

RALPH McGILL

'—Into the Land Of the Corn-Crackers'

"I'm a Georgia Cracker, and proud of it."

"He's an old-time Florida Cracker."

In west Alabama a man pointed out to me a family of poor whites on the porch of a shack and said, "Look at those Crackers, all of 'em rocking and the fields unplowed."

A South Carolinan, showing me one of the old rice plantations, spoke of the "Crackers" who "hung on to a piece of swamp land, trapping a little and stealing a lot."

The word has many interpretations.

Men of wealth, from one of the states where the word is used, like to beguile their New York, Chicago and Boston friends on visits to those cities with the phrase, "I'm just a Cracker from down south."

They don't really mean it. That is the companion phrase to "I'm just a country boy from down south."

The word has come to connote indolence and decadence. It brings to mind, for the average person, a character out of Erskine Caldwell's "Tobacco Road."

I knew it did not originally carry that exact interpretation. It came out of the early history of the south.

But where, and what, the origin?

TWO STORIES There were two stories told in explanation. One was that in the early days the hogshead of tobacco and bales of cotton were drawn by oxen. The drivers used long whips with "crackers" on the end which they made to crack about the ears of their patient teams.

When the migrations began out of South Carolina and Virginia into the new, rich lands of Alabama, Georgia and north Florida, the teams of oxen and their whip-racking drivers brought the word "cracker" with them.

So the story ran. It was just fairly plausible but it didn't quite ring true.

The other story, much less plausible, was that the word derived from the early rural custom of loafers sitting about the crossroads store, their hands dipping often in the cracker barrel.

So—the phrase, "those Crackers."

That couldn't be it.

THOMAS BARBOUR I think I have found the real origin. Dr. Thomas Barbour, author of "Naturalist at Large," and many articles on that subject; director of the Agassiz museum at Harvard University, is now in Florida. He is finishing a new book, "That Vanishing Eden," and it is concerned, largely, with Florida.

The Atlantic Magazine is publishing some chapters from the book. In reading the May issue I read one of Dr. Barbour's chapters, "Camping in Florida." He told of his first visit to the Doxahatchee marsh, and wrote:

"We often met up with Dan Parker, a handsome young Indian, and his pretty bride, one of the Tiger Tail girls, she being loaded down with yard upon yard of brightly colored beads about her neck to show the magnitude of her aristocratic inheritance. Occasionally they lunched with us. We frequently tried to camp near where Billy Stewart—another Indian—had his clan hunting. Then, if any trifling cracker came round with theft on his mind, some Indian would be sure to see him and tell us about it. The Indians never entertained such ideas themselves.

"You may wonder why I use the word 'cracker.' I wondered myself for many years. The name is applied to what may be called the poor white natives of Georgia and Florida. Reading Bartram once supplied the answer. He said, as I remember it, 'I journeyed now into the land of corn crackers.' As the world knows, the crackers' staple food is hominy grits and gravy, and grits, of course, are made from cracked Indian corn."

On reading that I knew I had it. I was satisfiad with it. The pioneer in the south did grow corn. He did crack it for his meal. He did invent grits which, with gravy, are the staple food of today. (I am minded to say, thank Heaven, being inordinately fond of grits with chicken gravy or with a good pat of butter. Or, for that matter, fried in butter for breakfast.)

READING BARTRAM I felt instinctively I had the true origin. But I was embarrassed at not knowing Bartram, who had supplied the origin.

So, I searched and am making the acquaintance of John Bartram, born March 23, 1699, in Delaware county, Pennsylvania. He was America's first botanist and is regarded as the peer of any botanist of any age.

He made many journeys over America. In 1765 he received a royal grant and sailed for Charleston. From there he journeyed alone, through Georgia and to St. Augustine and on to St. John's river, which he traversed by canoe, borrowing it from an Indian.

It was he who first discovered the royal palm which, until 1830, grew in a few groves as far north as St. John's river. An unusual cold wave of 1830 destroyed them all the way down to the tip of Florida.

Florida amazed him and he wrote a book, "Description of East Florida. With a Journal by John Bartram," published in 1769.

Nothing escaped him—trees, flowers, fruits, birds, fish, minerals, the river's course, its shoals, currents, depths.

He was friend of Ben Franklin and many of this country's notables.

Later, he and his son came back to Georgia and Florida and it is on this trip that he writes of "the land of the corn crackers."

I am grateful to John Bartram and to Thomas Barbour for writing of him.

And I also must again mention my gratitude to those early pioneers who, out of necessity, invented grits. What a cruel world this would be at breakfast-time without grits.

All honor to those early "Crackers."

Badge of Parasite Is Shameful Today

It was at a lunch one day last week. At the adjoining table to mine a party of three women sat. They were smartly dressed in the 30-year-age group. Utter strangers to me.

One had permitted her fingernails to grow until they projected about three-fourths of an inch beyond her finger tips. They were, you know, carefully shaped and tinted that deep, deep red the gals affect nowadays. I am quite aware that false fingernails of that type can be bought and fixed over the nails. However, interested, I looked as closely as possible at the fantastic decorations of that woman's hands and I am morally sure the abortions were her own.

And the sight started thoughts, far from complimentary to the young woman.

WOMEN WHO WORK There are hundreds of thousands of women in this country today who deserve the utmost praise for their contributions to the nation at war.

No one can commend too highly the women who have left their homes and normal ways of life to go to work in war industry. (That is, with the exception of those who have gone A. W. O. L. as strikers, thus betraying the fighting men whose lives depend upon the weapons they should be making.)

But there remain hundreds of thousands of women who, before the war, would have believed factory work impossible for them, who are today doing a magnificent job at the lathes and assembly lines of the war plants.

There are the women who are still at home, but doing grand work in keeping those homes attractive and comfortable for the workers of the families. The women who have turned to, with a grin, to work that used to be done by domestic servants, those former cooks and maids who have themselves gone into the factories or other war activities. These homekeepers are deserving of high praise, too, for the way in which they have "carried on" the essential job of homekeeping and done all the work involved cheerfully and happily.

There are the volunteers in the Red Cross activities and in the Women's Auxiliary Services. The nurses' aides, the Gray Ladies, the volunteer women chauffeurs, the USO, and scores of others.

There are the nurses of the Army and the Navy, at home and with the fighting forces at the battle fronts, who are doing such heroic work.

And there are the women in uniform, the members of the WAC, the WAVES, the Women Marines and the SPARS. They are serving alongside the men in uniform, capably and grandly.

All these, and many other women, deserve and get, the thanks of the nation. For they have answered the call in a time of desperate crisis.

(Incidentally, there is urgent need for many more enlistments in the WAC, the WAVES, the Women Marines and the SPARS. If you can qualify, the call is for you, today.)

WHAT CAN SHE DO? But, that woman with the silly, long nails—what can she do?

She can't do her housework and keep her nails in that condition. If she has a house of her own, of necessity she must employ some domestic help to do all the work. Which is keeping that maid, cook, and so on, from doing more essential work.

If she is a young mother, with one or more young children, she can't even attend to them with such fingernails. Which means keeping a nurse, with same result as described above.

She can't operate a typewriter, bookkeeping machine or do anything else in an office. Except, perhaps, sit in decorative grandeur as a "receptionist."

She can't of course, work in any sort of a factory.

In short, she can contribute nothing, with her hands, to the work that should be the duty of every one of us today.

She may not realize it, but those fingernails are her personal badge of shame, the stigmata of a useless drone.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Important Topic

NEW YORK, May 29.—One day last week, the New York World-Telegram carried six labor stories, one editorial on labor and a column by Fred Perkins, out of Washington, also dealing with labor, or unionism. The next day, the New York Times had two stories on Page 1, three on Page 10, plus two jumps from the Page 1 pieces, one on Page 16 and one editorial on labor. This was just an average run of labor news and comment and it suggests to me that, next to the news from the front and perhaps the news of the political campaigns, it is the most important topic of the time in the United States. However, you can't separate labor, or union, news from the political matter because some political stories deal with labor and most labor stories, editorials and essays have political implications, and this is election year.

At any rate, I think our people have jumped labor news and comment ahead of other topics which used to interest them much more, such as sports, which once were almost mania with us, and murders and other crime.

We are now familiar with the personal and political histories, characteristics and connections of many union bosses who 10 years ago were only background figures and people are beginning to realize that these few men, not more than a hundred high-ranking officials, with absolutely no mandate from the voters, have more power in this country than all the state governors put together, and, actually, up to now, more power than congress.

The Reason

The reason why they have more power is that, first they have millions of dollars to spend to defeat individual governors and individual senators and congressmen in isolated contests, and second, have the backing of the national government, meaning the administration, and the friendship of the supreme court. The governors aren't organized together on a national front and if a congressman is knocked off in a primary or election by union money and propaganda, the others just say, tough luck, pal, and, pull in their necks. Not all the rest of them, but most of them.

Some people have said to me that the public and, particularly the women are sick and tired of labor stuff but what I say is the hell they are, although they may have been once. But, if so, we might just as well fold up the republic and slide into Naziism or Communism. It makes no difference which because these few men have absolutely no regard for our rights as citizens and are hell-bent to take over the country with a sub-government operating under the protection of the administration. For example, they think nothing of passing an economic death sentence on a citizen for violating a union oath, taken under duress, for appealing to the public courts against a union sentence or for attending a meeting of discontented members to organize a rival faction.

Some Refugees

Some of them came here as young refugees from oppression, themselves, along about the time of the last war but went out soapboxing around New York for a revolution to louse up the promised land instead of enlisting in the Army to fight the enemy of the promised land in France. If they had got away with their revolution the Kaiser would have won the western front and probably the promised land would have gone the way of Russia for the next 25 years but nevertheless, today, some of them are up to their eyes in American politics and putting themselves up as leaders of the American working man and women. Others are just common crooks, others native gang politicians of the true Tammany type who tolerate crooks just as a Tammany boss protects gamblers and jury-fixers, and other dictatorial ignoramuses who rule with the gavel and the bat and, for an actual fact, don't know enough about the freedoms which they babble about in speeches written for them by their prostitute publicity men to realize that they violate those freedoms every day.

It has been a long and repetitious process, teaching the American people what unionism is under the New Deal laws, what its powers are, who is who among the bosses, how they line up in their rivalries, which are the Communists and how they operate. And, most important of all, how the whole gang of them, with the greatest financial power in American politics have interposed their authority between the people and their constitutional, financial, economic, civil and human rights with the exception of the mine workers, an absolute dictatorship under a tyrant who has an ex-convict, a burglar, on his governing board, and the carpenters, a greedy, sprawling shakedown ruled by a family dynasty, they are all in the Democratic party. They are out to win and if they win the American workers lose for there is no reason to believe that in a fourth term President Roosevelt would permit any more impairment of their powers than he has permitted in the past, amounting, in all, to just exactly none.

NATIONAL COMMENT:

SOLID FOUNDATION
(Pittsburgh Press)

Enlistments in the WAC's, WAVES, SPARS and Lady Marines have been a little slow, in spite of exhortations to patriotism, glowing accounts of accomplishments, and other enticing publicity. But we think that the military has at last found the solution to this problem.

The foundation garment, nearly extinct in civilian life, is general issue to the auxiliaries. So now there's a new slogan: "Join the service and get a girdle."

Stand aside and let 'em in!

JACK TARVER

Talent Is Where You Find It

Now, personally, I hold no brief for bigamy, trigamy or any other category of multiple matrimony.

In fact, I have always contended that every indictment for bigamy should have attached thereto a lunacy writ to be simultaneously served.

I begin this column thusly because I have learned from sad experience that many, too many, people never bother to read anything in full but merely glance at a few words here and there and formulate their own opinion. And certainly, as a citizen married to but one female and entirely satisfied with the status quo, I do not wish the word to be passed hither and yon that Tarver is out espousing polygamy.

Having thus clarified my position, I do wish to say that it seems to me that the vested authorities are shortsighted in handing down sentences, ranging from one to five years, to fifteen Fundamentalists who had, according to the last census, no less than 55 wives.

I say this not alone because thus left orphaned for a considerable time will be some 283 children of the prolific sect. It is, to be sure, a factor to consider, but I am looking at the case from even more far-reaching aspects.

The nation, I contend, needs these men in key positions during the next few critical years.

Just think, for instance, what able diplomats they would make. Handling the ins-and-outs of international intrigue would be mere child's play to a man who had simultaneously lived in domestic harmony with five help-meets.

And there wouldn't be any need to call world-wide monetary conferences or worry about the national debt with one of those gents as Secretary of the Treasury. Anybody who can provide for a half dozen wives and 28 children would have the federal government paying the taxpayers dividends in a couple of years.

Of course, it would have its drawbacks. Just suppose one of them finally got elected President. The newsprint shortage and the travel situation is bad enough already without having six or eight first ladies riding about over the country doing daily columns.

DOROTHY THOMPSON

Thinks We Should Insist Upon A Democratic Deal for Europe

(Gladstone Williams, whose column usually appears here, is on vacation.)

The vacuum in the Teheran agreements is Europe. Although the creation of an association of nations is envisaged, European countries will apparently function in it only as relatively small units which would have to tie up with one or another of the great powers to have an effective voice.

No one European power will be allowed to have an hegemony over Europe. Neither will Russia, Britain or the United States. But there is no encouragement for any other European solution—such as its organization into one, two or three interlocking confederations which would, by consolidation, enable Europeans to enter as equals with the big powers into a world association.

This solution will inevitably lead to the following things:

1. The Big Three will be interested to foster divisions in Europe, as the only means of keeping her weak, ineffective and servile.

2. When nationalisms do not succeed in preventing European consolidation, the Big Three will be tempted to foster conflicting social and political organizations, augmenting national hostilities by social hostilities. The parallel is India—and there are signs of it already. The Anglo-American policy is supporting monarchistic, anachronistic, conservative governments. The Russians are promoting popular front governments.

3. Invariably these different types of government will gravitate toward Britain or Russia; there will be a constant interplay of influences inside the small European room; progressive countries will try to extend their ideas into conservative countries, and vice versa, and both sides will appeal to one or another of the big Big Three. Moreover, the various movements will appeal to sections of public opinion in the democracies. The struggles inside Europe will be reflected inside our democracies. And in all this division and struggle are the seeds of a new war.

SOLIDARITY MAINTAINED? Under these conditions, it is impossible to believe that the solidarity of the Big Three can be permanently maintained. But is there any alternative?

There is. It is this alternative that is being neglected, especially by the one country in a position to promote it: the United States. The United States, more than any other country, has a personal and sentimental stake in Europe. The New World is the offspring of the Old. Britons and Russians are not as susceptible as Americans to the troubles of Poles, Yugoslavs, Frenchmen, Italians, and yes, even Germans. The great democracy of the west, which is an amalgam of descendants of Europeans, owes to Europe a European solution. The great democracy of the west owes to Europe a democratic solution. The great federation of the west owes to Europe a federal solution. We owe it to Europe because we owe ourselves a solution for Europe, and the end of wars over Europe.

The President of the United States is haunted by the ghost of Woodrow Wilson. He is apparently afraid to take leadership lest, like his predecessor, he be repudiated at home. But the American people are more conscious in this war than in the last. They have discovered that they are in the world, and that being so they had better energetically attempt to create a world in which they can stay. The fate of Wilson can go into reverse, and the American people complain one day, not that its leadership has done too much, but has left too much undone.

MENACE A weak and divided Europe will prove a greater menace to all three big powers than a strong Europe, united into one or several federations. Europe cannot be permanently written out of history. It contains over 400,000,000 persons, most of them strongly politically conscious, most of them skilled in the arts, sciences, and technologies of modern civilization. To assume that these millions will not one day wake up to the situation in which they are placed as quarreling national groups in the midst of a consolidated Russian, British and American world, is to underrate their intelligence.

There are signs and portents that they are awakening already. It is certain that they want liberation from Hitler, but sooner or later they will want to translate that liberation into a new European life, under their own responsibility. The pressure of the big powers will drive them towards unity, whether they want it or not. It is ridiculous to think that hatred of the Germans will compel Europe to accept indefinitely an attrition of European life to insignificance and powerlessness.

And it is unthinkable to me that the people of the United States will indefinitely collaborate with anyone to keep Europe divided, weak, economically and politically anarchronistic, and, as a result, a festering sore. The price that Britain and Russia ought to have to pay for American power as a guarantee of their territorial security is a new deal for Europe.

EVELYN HANNA

Thundering Springs And Why They Thunder

Tucked away in the northwestern corner of Upson county near the base of Pine Mountain, and forgotten for many years was an old resort and landmark, Thundering Springs.

Adiel Sherwood mentioned it in his Gazeteer in 1860 and stated that there was a United States post office at the spot. There is said to have been a hotel as well, and among its guests was probably my grandfather, Captain J. S. King, who had been wounded during the War Between the States and went there for his health.

Not far from Flint river and surrounded by cool green hills, it was a favorite site during Reconstruction Period for Sunday school picnics; the meditative might muse here on the wonders of nature while the carnal minded sported in the bathing pool.

At that time, the spring still thundered—or, as a Geological Survey bulletin says more prosaically, ". . . it is possible that the escape of air bubbles of the deep pipe-like cavity may have given rise to a low rumbling-like noise." But through neglect the spring became choked with logs and sands; weeds all but obliterated it, and the thundering noise ceased.

Then to the rescue came the Boy Scouts. J. M. Moulder, of Griffin, executive of the Flint District Council, decided that here was an excellent site for the Scouts' summer camp, and the property was purchased from J. J. Lawrence, of Crest, whose family had owned it for several generations. In all, 1,700 acres were brought for the use of the 1,200 members of the Flint District Council, and the necessary buildings were begun.

Leaving the Thomaston-to-Greenville highway at Mr. Lawrence's home just above Crest, the visitor notices at once a variety of soils. There are typical Upson county red clay, black 'mountain" loam and sand. Just below the old Thornton home, where the post office once stood and a shed used by passengers on the Macon and Birmingham railway, the road forks. The visitor can take the high road or the low road; one of them is right and the other wrong. As for us, we took the wrong one, naturally, and crept over the winding green-wooded hills. Several miles later it became apparent that we should have been less ambitious and been content to go the more lowly way.

HELP FROM A FARMER

A farmer, busy with his machines and hired help, paused to direct us and suggested that we turn just where we were. We looked the situation over doubtfully; never famed for our driving, and currently quite out of practice, we were appalled at the prospect of turning at a spot embellished by rocks, chasms, wooded hills and precipices. Then the farmer, Mr. Glanton, who must be set down as one of Nature's noblemen and a very pleasant one at that, kindly came and turned the car around as easily as if it had been on the court house square. He was planting pimientos, we learned, a very profitable crop now that they fetch $65 a ton at the cannery in Zebulon.

With no further mishaps we arrived at the entrance to Camp Thunder and left the car, because there was at least an acre of smooth terrain in which to turn. Miss Jessie elected to nurse her blood pressure there rather than face unknown dangers beyond; and, after all, it was no hotter than midday in mid-[illegible] at least, not more than 10 or 20 degrees hotter.

Over a road blittering with mica we set out with our companion and came soon to the caretaker's lodge. Mr. Smith's radio was proclaiming the virtues of soap flakes, but otherwise this was a delightfully quiet spot (too quiet, said Mr. Smith, who lives there the year around) and high, and cool. A few yards farther along were the permanent camp buildings, mess hall and combination canteen-and-office. They are built of pine boards, creosoted, and fit well into the green and brown solitude of the woods. For five weeks during the summer Scouts live there, 50, 75, even a hundred at a time, and a cook prepares their meals. At other seasons they camp in tents which they themselves bring along, and do their own cooking.

RATTLERS?

There is a lake, of course, at the foot of the hill before the main buildings, approached by a wooded path, and just off this path we were certain that we heard a patriarchal snake shaking its 17 rattles like castanets. But the lake has its charms, water-lilies in the shallow parts and a diving board where the water is deep.

A sigh pointing to a similar path read, "To the Spring," and our companion asked if we wanted to see it. Just then from our left came an answer to the 17 rattles and we suspected that soon the two snakes would be meeting for lunch. "Those noises are probably made by some of the little woods creatures," we said, "but surely we can take Mr. Smith's word for the spring. If he says it is there, then there it is bound to be." She agreed heartily, and we hastened back to the car to see if Miss Jessie's blood pressure had burst. Approaching home, the car began to make a strange noise, the kind of noise a car makes when there is no water in the radiator, or that the sirens will make when the invasion comes. But all the pieces were there.

Thundering Springs is perhaps a not-so-distant relative of Warm Springs, for it has a constant temperature of 76 degrees Fahrenheit and is located in the same mountain chain. The spring is quite large; water comes up with considerable force through a white sand and forms a good-sized branch. But the sand is unique in one respect; when it is pressed in the hands it gives out a peculiar cracking sound not unlike snow when similarly crushed.

AN INDIAN LEGEND

The spring was well known to the Indians who had a most sentimental legend to explain its thundering sound. According to this legend a chieftain, Bian-wa-wa, wounded in battle, was carried to the home of a hostile Cherokee warrior and nursed by the warrior's daughter, Theotaska. Inevitably, the two fell in love, but the girl had been promised to another, and Bian-wa-wa rode away—only to return the next spring and carry the girl home with him. As a souvenir she took a white rose with her, planted it in her new home and called it the Cherokee rose.

When the next war came along Bian-wa-wa had to leave his bride, who, as his absence became prolonged, pined away and died. The other members of the tribe moved elsewhere and only the medicine man remained.

He was startled one winter's night by a horseman, Bian-wa-wa, who demanded an explanation of his deserted village. On learning of his wife's death, the chieftain spurred his horse and rode down the hillside into the glittering spring below. The treacherous water sank with him, says the legend, for the Great Spirit, pitying his anguish, pulled a screen of earth over him. The spring rose again at the foot of the hill, and the moanings of the dead chieftain made a noise like thunder. They only ceased when he and Theotaska found each other, we are told. But it seems a bit more logical to believe in air bubbles.

Invasion Chiefs Under Man-Killing Strain of Work

LONDON, (By Wireless).—The top commanders who have toiled and slaved for months planning the second front have been under a man-killing strain of work and responsibility.

Thousands of men of high rank have labored endlessly. They are up early, they work all day, and after supper they go back to work far into the night. Seldom can you get one of them to take a day off.

Among the greatly conscientious ones in this category is Lieutenant General Omar Bradley, who will lead all the American troops in the second front.

The other day I ran into Sergeant Alex Stout, from Louisiana, who has been General Bradley's driver for several years. The general is very fond of Alex, and in turn Alex is not afraid to look at his king or to plot in his behalf.

ALEX PERSISTENT

Alex keeps saying: "General, you're working too hard. If you won't take a day off, why don't you get in the car and we'll just drive around the country for a couple of hours?"

He was persistent. One day he put it to his boss again and the general said, well, as soon as he filled two more appointments he would go out for a half-hour ride. So Alex got him in the car and headed for the country.

"We drove for two hours," Alex says. "I told him I was lost and couldn't find my way back to town. But I knew where I was all the time, all right."

PLUG FOR ZIPPO

The Zippo Manufacturing Company, of Bradford, Pa., makes Zippo cigaret lighters. In peacetime they are nickel plated and shiny. In wartime they are black, with a rough finish.

Zippos are not available at all to civilians. In Army P. X.'s all around the world, where a batch comes in occasionally, there are long waiting lists.

Well, some months ago I had a letter from the president of the Zippo Company. It seems he is devoted to this column. It seems further that he'd had an idea. He had sent to our headquarters in Washington to get my signature, and then he was having the signature engraved on a specal nickel-plated lighter and he is going to send it to me as a gift.

AMUSED AT MODESTY

Pretty soon there was another letter. The president of the Zippo Company had had another brainstorm. In addition to my superheterodyne lighter he was going to send 50 of the regular ones for me to give to friends.

I was amused at the modesty of the president's letter. He said, "You probably know nothing about the Zippo lighter."

If he only knew how the soldiers covet them. They'll burn in the wind, and pilots say they are the only kind that will light at extreme altitudes. Why, they're so popular I've had three of them stolen from me in the past year.

Well, at last the lighters have come, forwarded all the way from Italy. My own lighter is a beauty, with my name on one side and a little American flag on the other. I'm smoking twice as much as usual just because I enjoy lighting the thing.

The 50 others are going like hotcakes. I find myself equipped with a wonderful weapon for winning friends and influencing people. Thanks from all of us, Mr. Zippo.

TIME TO MAKE WILLS

The Army occasionally gets the correspondents together for instructions on preparing for the second front. Sometimes we have fun at these meetings.

For example, the other day an officer got up and said the time had come for us to make our powers of attorney and prepare our wills, if we hadn't done so already. Everybody in the room laughed—you know, one of those cackly, mirthless laughs of a man who is a little sick at his stomach.

And then the officer was explaining that we could take with us only what we could carry on our backs, and the rest of our stuff would be turned over to the Army and would probably catch up with us a couple of weeks after we reached the other side.

Whereupon one correspondent, newly arrived in these parts, asked:

"Should we carry our steel helmets and gas masks or put them in the luggage to be forwarded later?"

The poor fellow was almost laughed out of the room. Does one send for the fire department two weeks after the house has burned down?

ENGLISH TRADITIONS

You just can't break down English traditions. For example, I registered at a hotel as Ernie Pyle and then on another line gave my full three names, as the law requires.

And do you know how my hotel bill comes? It comes weekly in a sealed envelope on which is typed "E. Taylor-Pyle, Esq."

In a couple of weeks if I'm a good boy I hope to have "The Honorable" put in front of my name.

FOR THE SAKE OF THE RECORD:

Graves Not On The News at Time of 1906 Race Riots

(Editor's Note: The following article, by Editor John Temple Graves in the Birmingham Age-Herald, is reprinted herewith to give added circulation to a denial of charges which have besmirched the reputation of a famous Atlanta newspaperman.)

There is no rhyme for this column today. A lie has gone into history. It is about my father, and how am I going to get it out? It has traveled so long and far that even though I rant into documentary proof of its absolute falsity when I was in Macon a few days ago I am afraid it will go on. John Donald Wade put it into a sketch in the Dictionary of American Biography. Virginius Dabney picked it up there, handed it on in his "Liberalism in the South." The late W. J. Cash got it from Mr. Dabney, put it into "The Mind of the South." And last year Thomas Sancton, of the New Republic, resurrected it in that magazine without naming names.

The lie is the statement that my father, as editor of The Atlanta News, was responsible for the Atlanta race riot of September, 1906. The News had played up highly inflammatory (and, some said, false) stories of criminal attacks on white women by Negroes, and a New York newspaper blamed my father on this score afterward. That is where John Donald Wade got his information for the Dictionary of American Biography. If only Dr. Wade had checked the facts!

THE FACTS

The facts are that my father was not connected with The Atlanta News in September, 1906, when the riot occurred. After four years as its editor he had left the paper in January of that year because of a quarrel with its publisher, Charles Daniel, and had joined Fred L. Seely in establishing a new paper, The Atlanta Georgian. The first issue of The Georgian, with my father much displayed as editor and co-proprietor, appeared on April 25, 1906, five months before the riot. I have a copy of that paper in my possession as I write this. There is no doubt of the date, and it is proof absolute. My father was not only gone from The News when the inflammatory stuff was printed but was bitterly at odds with its publisher over certain editorial and personal matters.

After the riot Major John Fletcher Hanson, who had become one of the financial backers of The News, refused to have anything more to do with it because of those headlines and extras. The paper was sold to The Georgian.

These facts came to me in Macon when I discussed the matter with Charles J. Bayne, of The Macon Telegraph. Mr. Bayne, one of the south's most distinguished newspapermen, had been associate to my father on the old News and had gone over with him to The Georgian in the same capacity after the quarrel with Daniels. When he told me he and my father had left The News months before the riot I couldn't believe him. For years I had presumed they were still on The News at the time and had defended my father by saying he probably had nothing to do with the news policy but merely handled the editorials (as many editors do today). I said this in my recent book, and told how a group of Negroes had come to put themselves under his protection during the riot because, they said, he was the best friend the Negro had in Atlanta. But when Mr. Bayne told me this I looked up the first issue of The Georgian, which I had had in my possession for years without ever noticing the exact date. And there it was—April 25, 1906. I shall remember that date forever.

NEVER KNEW

Fortunately my father never knew of the resurrection of this false charge. It was not until after his death that John Donald Wade's sketch appeared and the error went into history.

That the New York newspaper which inaugurated the lie should have made the mistake was natural, perhaps. My father had been editor of The News a number of years prior to his resignation nine months before the race riot and was nationally known in that capacity. The New York paper could have been honestly unaware of the fact that he had left The News. Whether denials were entered against the monstrous accusation, I do not know. Probably they were, but coming after the story was no longer front page news had no such publicity as the accusation. My father must have thought them sufficient, however, for I know he was not aware afterwards that the lie about him had had any general acceptance. It hadn't, and would never have had, I believe, if Dr. Wade had not picked it up so carelessly after my father's death and put it into the authoritative Dictionary of American Biography where Virginius Dabney found it and launched it on its infamous career.

If I give my entire column to this matter today my excuse is that it means a world to me, whether it does to anybody else or not. I want to spread the truth as far as I possibly can. I believe my friends will want to help. My father was as gallant and clean a man as ever lived. His wealth was his good name. It is a bitter thought that no matter how completely the facts vindicate him now, this old charge may never wholly disappear.

"Our school now giving four-year course in three years"—Advertisement.

Clear the way, the graduates are coming down the aisles!
What a lovely sight they make, faces beam with smiles,
Crammed with rules of rhetoric, stuffed with ancient lore,
Ready, now, to make the world better than before—
Remembering a Latin word . . . "excelsior" . . . they shout
"Ever onward, speed it up for time is running out."
And in between embracing banks the lazy rivers flow
As nonchalantly as they swept a million years ago.
The sun sinks down as lazily into its bed of gold
As it did before Methuselah was twenty minutes old.
And everything in nature moves according to the plan
Except the lordly creature whom we designate as "man."
He hurries through his breakfast and he runs to catch the bus
And if, perchance, he misses it, we hear him wildly cuss.
He hurries out at twelve o'clock to grab a little snack
And hurriedly he swallows it and then he hurries back.
He hurries home at six o'clock, he hurries through his shave—
And speed is his obsession from the cradle to the grave.

So . . . we hereby raise our old and battered signal of distress
And our piping voice is calling deep within the wilderness
We don't need to speed the youngsters up, we need some way to scotch 'em,
For we're getting old and feeble and it tires us out to watch 'em.

ROBERT QUILLEN

If a Man Can't Control His Fate, He Can Avoid Making It Worse

There are sour-souled people who seem to hate all mankind: there are others, made unpopular by their own hatefulness, who save their pride by pretending not to care what anybody thinks of them, but all normal people wish to be liked by their fellow men. The desire for popularity, like the desire to excel, is born in us.

This inborn desire is one of the few that cannot be gratified by industry or effort, for no man can make himself popular, no matter how hard he tries. Popularity seems to depend upon the mysterious quality called charm, which is a gift of the gods and not to be counterfeited. You have it or you don't, and there's an end of it.

Pursuit of popularity may be vain, but one who makes conscientious effort can at least avoid being very unpopular.

The first step, of course, is to observe the unpopular and discover what quality or practice or behavior or other thing makes them so generally disliked.

The chief cause appears to be bad manners. People have tender feelings, easily hurt, and this is especially true of customers who have money to spend, and therefore feel entitled to some consideration, and of all people who regard themselves as underdogs because they are not free to talk back. The object of good manners is to make people feel good, and, of course, bad manners make them feel bad.

The second most common reason is envy. At first glance this might seem beyond the victim's control, but it isn't. Many people who were popular while poor became increasingly unpopular as they won success and accumulated wealth.

Every one of them doubtless would say: "It isn't my fault if the envious dislike me. I had a right to succeed." Quite true. But success changes most people. They feel a little more important, a little bit superior; their manner and tone of voice change, if ever so little. They live better. And old acquaintances, watching suspiciously, note these things and feel resentful.

Many other causes of unpopularity, too familiar to need mention, may somehow be avoided.

It may be one's face or manner or tone of voice, or something that can't be explained. In any case it's a pain in the neck to other people, and that's that.

Fear Curbs Productivity

AN employee burdened by debt because of sickness or accident, of his own or members of his family, is often only half-help. Financial distress and the fear of it cannot be properly dealt with by passing around the hat.

A well-planned program of Group Life, Sickness, Accident, Hospital and Surgical Insurance coverage is the business-like, economical way of meeting such contingencies. It's the way to maintain productivity, efficiency and morale of employees.

Soviet Airmen Destroy 60 Planes in Romania

LONDON, May 29.—(AP)—Red air force squadrons destroyed or disabled at least 60 enemy planes in bombing and machinegunning attacks today on airfields at Roman and Husi, Romania, the Soviet communique announced tonight.

Both cities lie in the zone between the Carpathians and the Dnestr, and airmen stationed there could provide tactical support of Axis forces awaiting a renewal of the Red army offensive in the south.

"At the moment of the raid there were many enemy planes at the airdrome," said the communique, broadcast from Moscow and recorded by the Soviet monitor." After silencing antiaircraft fire our planes carried out several bombing and machinegun attacks."

All the Russian raiders were reported to have returned.

Thirty-five enemy planes were destroyed in air combat and by ground fire Sunday, it was announced.

Of ground action, the bulletin said there were no essential changes.

WFA Authorizes 30-Million-Gallon Ice Cream Step-Up

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—People who scream for ice cream are going to get lots of it.

The War Food Administration announced today that the milk supply is so good it is going to permit the manufacture of about 30,000,000 more gallons of the frozen delicacy than were available last summer.

Russell Strives To Kill FEPC

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Strog southern support developed today for a move to kill, before it can get to the senate floor, the bitterly-disputed $500,000 appropriation which the house voted last week for the Fair Employment Practices Committee.

Senators Russell, Democrat, Georgia; Maybank, Democrat, South Carolina, and Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama—all members of the Appropriations Committee to which the matter will be referred—declared they would join in "exerting every effort" to strike out the item.

While the FEPC has the task of preventing race discrimination in war industry, Bankhead told a reporter that "it stirs up race strife rather than eases it."

Russell called it actually dischiminatory, "in giving a group of Negro politicians authority to cite employers and harass them in time of war," and Maybank declared "this organization is a mistake, particularly in time of war, and it is to the worst interests of the colored people themselves in trying to promote revolutionary changes."

Joanne Rae Is Crowned 'Napsonia' at School

Joanne Rae, of the graduating class of the Napsonian school and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Rae, of Atlanta, was crowned "Napsonia" at the annual class day exercises held on the school campus yesterday. This is the highest honor that can be won by a student at the school, and the girl winning it is selected by secret vote of her classmates because of nobility of character, activity in school affairs, participation in play and service to others.

Joanne has been a member of the Cecilian dramatic club for several years, has served as class officer this year, and as sports editor of the school newspaper. She is also a member of the Quill and Scroll, international honorary society for school journalists.

Alice Jean Caswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Caswell, has been awarded the Gladys Neal cup, the highest honor given an underclassman. She was president of the junior class for the first semester and has served as student president for the second semester.

Ann Brooke and Margaret Altman tied for the Dorothy Partridge cup, a freshman honor. It is awarded each year to the most outstanding freshman.

Graduation exercises will be held at 8:15 tonight at the Woman's Club. James C. Malone will give the address and Dr. Ferguson Wood, president, will present the diplomas.

Bonder Loses In Liquor Case

State Revenue Commissioner J. Eugene Cook hailed a Fulton superior court decision against a Savannah liquor dealer and a bond company as a new move to line up bonding companies in the state's fight to eliminate "undesirables" from the liquor business.

Judge Walter C. Hendrix, of Fulton superior court, ruled yesterday that John Abraham Thomas, Savannah retailer, and the Accident and Casualty Insurance Company of Winterthur, Switzerland, were liable for the full amount of the $2,500 bond posted with the state as a guarantee Thomas would conduct a lawful business. Cook filed suit for the bond after Thomas was convicted in Chatham county for selling untaxed liquor.

The defendant has served notice of intention to file an appeal. If the Fulton superior court's ruling is upheld, it will be the first time the state has collected a bond of a liquor dealer convicted of irregularities, court officials said.

"With the courts holding them responsible for the good conduct of their clients, bonding companies will not be likely to insure 'undesirables' as liquor dealers," Cook commented. "The state revenue department looks for more co-operation from the bonding companies in cleaning up the liquor business in Georgia."

Senate Group Extends Price-Wage Control Act

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The Senate Banking Committee approved late today legislation extending the price and wage stabilization program for 18 months, overriding an administration attempt to kill an amendment which an OPA official spokesman said might boost consumer prices of textile goods as much as $350,000,000 a year.

That amendment, by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, would call for periodic adjustment of textile ceiling prices with a view to boosting the market price of cotton to parity levels.

Henry M. Hart, associate counsel for the OPA, said estimates of the probable textile goods price increases which might result ranged between $225,000,000 and $350,000,000 yearly. The amendment was included by a 12-to-8 vote.

Also approved by the committee was an amendment by Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, which would, after June 30, 1945, limit federal subsidies to control consumer food prices to amounts directly appropriated by congress for subsidy purposes. At present, subsidies are paid from funds of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Commodity Credit Corporation, without limitation by congress.

Chairman Wagner, Democrat, New York, said the Taft subsidy amendment was approved without a record committee vote, and there were indications it received comparatively little administration opposition.

It would permit the present subsidy program to continue unchanged for a year—with congress to control the purse strings after that. It represented a compromise between prosubsidy and antisubsidy forces who have been battling over the issue in congress for two years.

Other amendments approved by the senate committee would:

Boost government loans on six basic crops, cotton, corn, wheat, rice, tobacco and peanuts, from the present 90 per cent of parity to 95 per cent.

Provide for review, by federal district courts, of OPA orders suspending business firms from operations as a penalty for violations of rationing regulations.

Set up a board of review to consider protests against OPA regulations, but leave in the hands of the emergency court of appeals authority to determine the legality of regulations. The review board would make recommendations to the price administrator.

Extends to the OPA authority to bring against retailers, as well as wholesalers, suits for damages resulting from price ceiling violations. At present, only consumers can file such suits against retailers.

Authorize the OPA to use its appropriations to purchase commodities as evidence in price, rent or rationing violation cases.

Revise the present provision fixing mandatory treble damages for price overcharges, to give federal courts authority to fix damages as between one and one-half and three times the amount of the overcharge, or $50, whichever is greater.

Health Preserves Youth And Looks

By H. C. NAYLOR, Pres.
Lane Drug Stores, Inc.

The next best thing to remaining young, which is impossible, is to preserve that youthful appearance which is attractive always.

Good health does this. The slim figure, the upright carriage, the elastic step, the good color and bright eye are as possible to middle age as to brisk youth. They can be retained far into the years of age, but only at a price—the price of care.

Your doctor can help—by giving you the sound practical advice of a scientific man. Most doctors remain youthful in appearance throughout long and strenuous lives. Their secret can be yours.

Judicious medication may be an aid. Procure it from a druggist recommended by your doctor. (c)

For more than 100 years it has been Quality that never varies

IT was in 1840—the year that the first trans-Atlantic Cunard liner "The Britannia" docked in Boston after a 14-day, 8-hour crossing from Liverpool—that Carling's brews were introduced in Canada. The century that followed has seen many changes. Few are the names that have survived the challenge of the passing years . . . war years . . . depression years . . . years of fierce competition. Throughout this period one consistent, cardinal Carling principle, cherished for more than a century, has answered each critical challenge—and has emerged stronger than ever . . . a principle that accounts for Carling's acceptance in 1840, and its ever-increasing popularity in 1943 . . . a principle expressed in four simple words, "Quality That Never Varies".

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE CRANE.

Alcohol is the crutch of weaklings or frightened folks. It is sought by men and women who want to flee from unsolved problems or social censure. If you cannot join a local chapter of "Alcoholics Anonymous," then follow the program outlined below and cure yourself.)

Case C-256: Martha M., aged 27, is a former school teacher who is now a farmer's wife.

"My husband is also becoming addicted to alcohol but we aren't near any society of 'Alcoholics Anonymous'," she began our interview.

"Is there anything that I can do to help him overcome this addiction to whisky?"

DIAGNOSIS

Chronic alcoholism should usually be regarded as the fire escape on a burning building.

It is an escape mechanism. If you recklessly tear the fire escape off the building without first attempting to put out the fire, the victims will try to break forth in some other direction. They may, for example, jump to sure death, rather than remain near the conflagration which is tormenting them.

Seek first the cause that makes the victim wish to escape via liquor. Then try to remedy the basic conflict or fear, and you will have a much easier time eliminating the liquor habit.

Even an admirable organization like "Alcoholics Anonymous" will not be able to keep its members permanently cured unless it goes to the root of their conflict.

WHY PEOPLE DRINK

When folks are afraid, they may seek to anesthetize their brain or conscience by alcohol.

Salesmen, therefore, are often so terrified at the thought of contacting an important prospect that they drink excessively to escape this inner conflict.

When men approach the age of 40, they tend to become sexual hypochondriacs, worried lest they be losing their masculine vigor. This very worry and self-analysis can throw a man into complete psychological impotence in a short time.

In their terror, these men turn to gambling or reckless driving or younger women or especially to alcohol.

Many a young husband not even 30 years of age has held the wrong view with reference to feminine passion. When he finds his wife passive, he may doubt his own ability or become jealous of imaginary former suitors, and finally try to escape from such torment via the anesthesia of whisky.

Others during their wife's pregnancy may grow secretly jealous of the unborn baby, and in their conscious revulsion at such an attitude, may try to flee from their conscience via alcohol.

CRUTCH OF WEAKLINGS

Men who don't know how to carry on an interesting conversation and are socially shy, may also lean upon alcohol as a crutch.

Others who are boasters or four-flushers before marriage, may later try to hide in drunkenness when their wives find them out.

The cure consists of first eradicating the cause. Put out the internal fire before tearing down the fire escape!

Use my various rating scales, marital charts and medico-psychological bulletins for building up confidence, conversational skill and marital techniques.

Then radically change your associates. Go to church. Eat a diet high in vitamins. Carry candy and eat it when you feel weak or woozy.

Buoy up your nervous exhaustion with caffeine drinks or ask your physician to prescribe benzedrine or other stimulants to tide you over the first few weeks.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Constitution, enclosing a long 3c stamped, addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek personal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

Brady's Health Quiz

By Dr. William Brady.

TETANY IN ADULTS

My dentist says I grind my teeth in my sleep, and chip them off so fast that they may go to pieces. But he can't tell me why or how I can stop it. (S. G.)

Answer—It is my conjecture—mind, I don't know whether this is correct—that the grinding of the teeth in sleep is a manifestation of tetany. Therefore, I suggest that you supplement your diet every day the year around with calcium and vitamin D, as described in detail in pamphlet, "Adult Tetany," mailed on request if you provide stamped envelope bearing your address. Many persons of middle age or older suffer much from cramps in the calves or feet nights—this, too, I believe, is a manifestigation of adult tetany. Physicians are inclined to think of tetany only as an infantile state, but in view of the common deficiency of modern refined diet in calcium and vitamin D, which has a good deal to do with poor teeth, it is reasonable to believe adults suffer from tetany as well as children.

GESTATION PERIOD

Is it possible for human gestation to cover a period of 339 days? (E. G. R.)

Answer—Average period is 280 days. In six per cent of cases it is over 300 days. Sometimes it lasts 320 days. I can find no cases of more prolonged gestation, that is, in scientific records.

These Recipes Help in Planning Your Midweek Meals

By Sally Saver.

Mid-week often finds the homemaker without a single bright food idea, especially if she has used her best ones in weekend entertaining. The two main dishes given here are designed to make up in a big way for this mid-week slump. The vegetable casserole, while containing no unusual ingredients is, nevertheless, something out of the ordinary because of the combination of familiar foods. The baked stuffed tomatoes use anchovy paste for that extra bit of flavor, but this may be omitted if not available, or a little finely chopped anchovy fillet may be substituted. These have been on the market rather consistently. The strawberry cream is smooth and so-o-o yummy.

SUMMER CASSEROLE

1 pound tiny new potatoes
2 pounds fresh lima beans
1 cup chopped celery
1-2 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon butter
Salt and pepper
1-4 pound boiled ham, sliced
1-2 cup thin cream

Boil potatoes in skins until tender. Peel. Cook beans in smallest amount of boiling salted water until tender. Add celery to the half-cup of boiling water and cook rapidly for 15 minutes or until water has almost evaporated. To it add butter, salt and pepper and then simmer until soft, about 10 minutes longer. Add cream, limas, ham cut into thin slivers and potatoes. Pour into a casserole and place in oven long enough to heat thoroughly. Serve from casserole. Serves 4.

STUFFED BAKED TOMATOES

For six servings select six good-sized, firm tomatoes. Cut a thin slice from top of each and scoop out pulp with a teaspoon. Sprinkle insides of tomatoes lightly with salt and pepper. Chop the tomato pulp and mix with 1 cup soft breadcrumbs, I tablespoon chopped onion, I teaspoon anchovy paste, 1-2 cup grated American cheese, I teaspoon salt,, — tablespoons melted margarine and 1 teaspoon sugar. Mix well and stuff the tomatoes with this mixture. Place tomato in a greased baking pan and bake in moderate oven until soft but skins not broken; takes about 25 minutes.

Serve each tomato on a round of toast with a spoonful of cheese sauce, made by mixing 1 cup grated cheese in 1 1-2 cups well-seasoned white sauce. Serve hot.

STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

Beat the yolks of 2 eggs with 1 cup sugar until light. Add 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup crushed, fresh strawberries, 1 cup cream whipped, and the stiffly beaten whites of 2 eggs. Pour into a freezing tray and freeze about 1 hour. Then put cream into a bowl, beat until smooth, but not melted, return to the tray and finish freezing. Serve with this sauce: Mix 1-2 cup sugar with 1-4 cup water and heat to boiling point. Boil three minutes, remove from fire and stir in 1 cup fresh, crushed strawberries. Let sauce stand until cool.

This sauce and cream may be made with any other berries or fresh fruit. Both peaches and raspberries are excellent.

On the Air

With two soldiers, stationed at an Allied base in England taking part, Ronald Colman will salute the American Doughboy with a patriotic dramatization in commemoration of Decoration Day during the "Everything for the Boys" program to be heard at 10:30 p. m. today.

In keeping with his policy of co-starring one of the shapliest ladies of the cinema or stage, Ronald will "date" Dinah Shore, who will share the spotlight with him in enacting Arch Oboler's "The House I Live In." She also will be featured singing several tunes which are favorites with the GI's.

According to Oboler, "The House I Live In" is a salute to the American way of life, to all Americans in villages and towns and cities, to the garage man, the truck driver, the banker, the postman, the schoolboy and the fighters overseas.

Harriet Hilliard and her equally popular husband, Ozzie Nelson, will trip into Duffy's Tavern (WAGA at 7:30 p. m.) when they are auditioned by Archie, who at present is seeking "arteests" with "poifection" to entertain the "upper crust" of society in the Tavern. Judges in the auditions will be Archie's usual company of queer characters, "Clifton Finnewan, Eddie, the Waiter; Clancy, the Cop, and Miss Duffy.

E. Phillips Oppenheim's story of an Englishman and a Nazi who resembled each other so closely as to be mistaken for twins, will be dramatized when the "Mystery Theater" enacts the "Great Impersonation" during the show to be heard at 8 p. m. today over WSB.

Baritone Lawrence Tibbett will visit Eddie Cantor during the comedian's program (WSB at 8 p. m.) today. The pop-eyed comic will dispense some more of his humor with Singer Nora Martin, Comedian Bert (Russian) Gordon and the Four Norsemen joining in the fun.

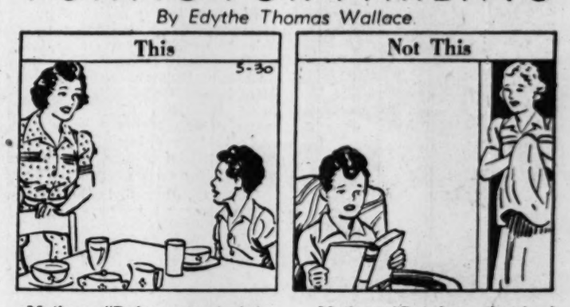
POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edythe Thomas Wallace



Mother: "Before we start to do anything else, let's go work in our victory gardens. Get the two hoes from the garage, will you, son, and I'll be with you right away."

Mother: "Put down that book and go hoe your garden."

Son: "I never start to read that you don't tell me to do something. I wish I'd never started a victory garden!"

Telling a child to stop something he is interested in and go and work alone is a pretty sure way of making him dislike the task to which he is sent.

Your Horoscope

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21-April 19 (ARIES)—This is not a day to indulge in flights of fancy in any sense of the word. You are likely to have an enthusiastic sort of daze which will not prove useful in carrying out practical results.

April 20-May 20 (TAURUS)—You are likely to feel a strong urge to get something done today, and will feel a desire to put things over in a hurry. If you can harness this force, hold it in bounds, this should be a most favorable period for all important matters.

May 21-June 20 (GEMINI)—Previous to 5:20 p. m. is a favorable period for important matters that may be transacted. After 5:30 p. m. disappointments are likely to come to you by expecting too much, or by a lack of preparation.

June 21-July 22 (CANCER)—The day favors more attention to necessary affairs and ideas that have been hanging fire for some time. The day favors using diplomacy around older people.

July 23-August 22 (LEO)—The morning hours and until 2 p. m. do not especially favor dealing in those things that you desire to be stable.

August 23-September 22 (VIRGO)—The entire day through 6 p. m. favors dealings in property, building, friendships with older people, and matters dealing with liquids and water. Details may be overlooked in haste, so give close attention to the fine points of what you are undertaking.

September 23-October 22 (LIBRA)—Some adjustments will have to be made before 1:04 p. m., for it will be easy to go to extremes of action. If calmness and poise are maintained, this will be a favorable period for work that requires quickness of action, otherwise antagonisms may abound.

October 23-November 21 (SCORPIO)—An excellent day for dealing with matters pertaining to the general public, professional people and politics. Some excellent results should be attained today.

November 22-December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 1:03 p. m. holds conservative influences, favoring matters of a substantial nature, getting at things in a positive way and finishing work that has been dragging.

December 22-January 19 (CAPRICORN)—The most important time of the day for taking important action along all lines appears to be after 12:33 noon. An excellent period for constructive work in matters of finances, personal advancement, constructive planning for future prospects and interviewing people in important positions.

January 20-February 18 (AQUARIUS)—Poise and calmness will be necessary through 12:29 noon in all dealings. Between 12:29 noon and 3:42 p. m. favors dealings with those in high positions, those who are at the head of affairs, dealings in finances and important business affairs.

February 19-March 20 (PISCES)—The combined influences of the day tend to produce a feeling of nervousness and erratic action. The day does not especially favor new beginnings. An excellent day to stick to established routine.

By MARY HARRIS ROWSEY.

THE other evening a telephone call to Mrs. Ralph B. Baker and her daughter, Mrs. John W. Miller, revealed that the two ladies were relaxing comfortably after a strenuous day serving as Nurses' Aides at Emory hospital. And that Mr. Baker was busy waxing furniture while Mr. Miller was washing the dinner dishes! Both these men are pardonably proud to the point of bragging over the marvelous and many contributions their wives are making to the war effort. As a consequence, they are more than willing to assume household chores on those days Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Miller devote to war interests.

Mrs. Miller, who is known professionally as Lois Miller, is a staff artist at a large department store. But when she accepted this position it was with the understanding that she have every Tuesday off to continue as a Nurses' Aide, for there is a desperate need of them for daytime service. She and her mother are on duty the same day. Mrs. Miller studied at the American Academy of Art, in Chicago, and frequently exhibits her paintings at the High Museum of Art.

Every week for a year and a half mother and daughter baked a birthday cake, decorated in all manner of attractive ways by Mrs. Miller, which they contributed to the Open Door Canteen. Servicemen having birthdays within the week were invited to share the tempting cake. The candles were lighted and everybody sang "Happy Birthday to You."

Recently, though, the cakes have been only a happy memory, for the cooks gave out of sugar! By stinting again on their own allotments, they hope to accumulate enough to start the project again before long.

Mrs. Baker has just received a certificate of merit from the Office of Civilian Defense for 1,500 hours of service as a volunteer telephone switchboard operator. She has been a Red Cross blood donor five times, and Mrs. Miller has been a donor six times. Both are aspiring to become members of the Gallon Club!

Mr. and Mrs. Baker came to Atlanta from Chicago two and a half years ago. They have two sons, one now a patient in a naval hospital, the other recently having been given a medical discharge from the Navy. The Millers, who reside with the Bakers, have been here for about a year and a half, also having come from Chicago. They have a six-year-old son, who is just as proud of his mother's part in the war effort as is his father.

DISCOVERED . . . That an interesting wedding will take place on Saturday at a naval base in a neighboring state. And that it will be a surprise to all except the couple's most intimate friends, for no announcement has been made of the engagement.

The bride-to-be, a pretty blonde, attended Napsonian School when it was known as North Avenue Presbyterian School, and was a popular member of the Pi Pi sorority. She also attended fashionable Marjorie Webster School, in Washington, D. C. She has one sister who is married and lives out of the city.

The bridegroom-elect was a well-known football player at Tech, where he was a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He holds a lieutenant's commission in the Naval Air Forces, and has been in the service for the past three years, a year of which was spent on active duty in the Pacific. He has two brothers in the service and an attractive sister.

Both the principals have unusually captivating personalities, and are exceptionally popular with their contemporaries. When the announcement of the marriage is made, they will be showered with hearty felicitations, for the match will have the approval of every person fortunate enough to know them.

Society's most cordial interest is centered today in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Doris Primrose Evington, of Lakeview, S. Gardner officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few friends. Dr. Charles Sheldon, organist, presented the music. The chapel was artistically decorated with arrangements of calla lilies, gladioli and swainsona against a background of palms.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Clyde Wilkins, wore a navy blue two-piece suit of crepe, with a white blouse. Her small off-the-face hat was also of navy, and she wore a shoulder spray of gardenias and swainsona. The groom's father served as best man.

Crackers Shade Pebbles, 6 to 5, With Late Rally

All in the Game

By JACK TROY

Speed-Up Slows Up Even considering the fact that there's a lot of hitting and some loose play afield, Southern League games are dragging more than they should.

Last year, umpires had the players hustling to and from the bench and there were many short cuts which reduced playing time.

But look at the inevitable result, which comes with a laxity of enforcement.

Games are running beyond two hours regularly.

There's a lot of action, resulting from all the base hits, but still there's need for more speed on the field. There's nothing more tiresome than a dragging game of baseball.

The Southern League has the speed-up rules. All that's needed for faster playing time is regular enforcement.

Average playing time of Atlanta games is two hours and 15 minutes.

Athletes Honored Honor athletes of Fulton county high schools will be guests at The Constitution's third annual banquet tonight. Each year the athletic program is climaxed by a dinner attended by winning athletes and the principals and athletic directors of the schools.

County schools' superintendent, Jere Wells, has paid high tribute to The Constitution's program, which has reached virtually all students in the school system. The program filled a void. There were athletics only for a chosen few on varsity teams until the broader program was introduced by The Constitution.

It's unique in that it is the only program of its kind sponsored in a county school system in America. Graham Jackson, talented piano player, now a Navy chief specialist, will entertain.

There is only one speaker annually. He is H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution. Mr. Trotti also will present medals to the honor athletes.

Unique Ceremony Charles (Chuck) Henderson, who's now a member of the Cracker squad, played under Harry Hughes at West Palm Beach in 1941, Hershel Dickson, a former Indian fan, reminds us.

Henderson, an Atlanta boy, had a unique wedding ceremony at Palm Beach. He was married at third base. Members of the squad attended and crossed bats to form an arch under which the bridal couple marched.

Fans took up a cash collection and also gave the newlyweds a shower of canned goods. All labels were torn off the canned goods, so the Hendersons for weeks never knew, upon opening a can, what they might have to eat.

Henderson, who was a star at West Palm Beach, played with Truck Melvin and Big Train Brown, other Atlanta boys.

Ladies' Night Game To End Series Tonight

By JACK TROY,
Constitution Sports Editor.

The Crackers outlasted the Little Rock Travelers and went one game up in the series which will be concluded tonight. The Crackers, winning last night by 6 to 5, now lead by three games to two.

Joe Roxbury wasn't on the mound for the Crackers at the end. Dick Mauney had done a rescue job of Francis Cronin, who started the ninth. Roxbury had retired for a pinch hitter in the eighth. As said, Roxbury wasn't around, but he was the winning pitcher. Except for a bit of wildness, he did a very good job in his opening Cracker assignment.

Ralph Pate, knocked out in the eighth and relieved by Frank Papish, was the losing pitcher.

UNUSUAL THING

Fans saw an unusual thing happen. They saw a manager, Ki Ki Cuyler, with enough foresight—and intestinal fortitude—to take out the league-leading hitter, Lindsay Deal, who bats left handed, and use a right-handed pinch hitter in his place when Papish, a southpaw, went to the mound. Murray Howell was the pinch-hitter, lining out to second base. The Crackers finally scored three runs in the inning and won the game.

The Pebbles outhit the Crackers, 9 to 8, in a slugging game that lasted two hours and thirty-five minutes, and proceedings were somewhat enlivened when Umpire Paul Blackard objected to remarks originating on the Little Rock bench and sent Pitcher Joe Callahan to the showers.

Pitcher Pate walked eight men and was not helped any by four Pebble errors.

A new Cracker first baseman, Nick Clein, a semi-pro from Dayton, Ohio, broke in and played well.

CRACKERS LEAD

Due to a slight mixup in signals or, perhaps, an intended steal that went awry, the Crackers scored one run instead of two in the first inning. Mauldin led off with a single and went out stealing. Then Goodman walked, Deal grounded out and Lipscomb doubled, scoring Goodman. Klein grounded out.

Mauldin led off the third with another infield hit and worked his way home when Goodman, Lipscomb and Klein walked.

Little Rock went ahead on hits and Roxbury's wildness in the fourth. McGhee and L. Johnson singled off Lipscomb's glove. Seeds scored McGhee with a single. Bolton flied to left and L. Johnson scored after the catch. Pate went safe on an error and Difani and V. Johnson walked, forcing in Seeds with the third run.

The Crackers tied the game on errors and Pate's wildness in the sixth. Viers was safe on an error. Ivy sacrificed. Roxbury walked. Mauldin went safe on Difani's second boot of the inning, and Goodman walked, forcing in Viers.

Cantrell doubled and McGhee singled to give the Pebbles a one-run advantage in the seventh.

Pate forced Bolton, who singled, and progressed home on singles by Difani and V. Johnson, adding to the Pebbles' lead in the eighth.

On a three-run outburst, aided by errors, the Crackers went back into the lead in their half of the eighth. Ivy walked. Mauldin singled to left, and both runners scored when the ball got away from Cantrell. Goodman singled, Lipscomb singled, Goodman raced on to third and kept on going as the throw got away from Lynn Johnson. So the Crackers had three runs without one being batted in.

Cronin went in to pitch in the ninth, walked McGhee and very properly was yanked without ceremony. Mauney took over and protected the lead.

Lakes To Open For Fishing On May 31

All lakes in north and south Georgia scheduled to open June 1 will be opened on Wednesday afternoon, May 31, in order to give fishermen in the smaller towns the benefit of half-holiday fishing, Charlie Elliott, of the wildlife division, announced yesterday.

Only Nottley and Chatuga lakes, in the U. S. Forest area, will not be opened this week. They'll open on the 10th of June.

Elliott changed the date for the opening of the other lakes at the request of numerous fishermen and said it was a pleasure for the wildlife division to accede, inasmuch as fishermen have been co-operating so splendidly with the department in observing the closed season.

ONE-ARMED MARVEL HERE TOMORROW—Pete Gray, one-armed Memphis outfield sensation, who is setting the Southern League pace in stolen bases with 15, will make his first 1944 appearance in Atlanta tomorrow night when the Chicks open a series with the Crackers at Ponce de Leon Park. Gray, shown here coming into a base in a cloud of dust, is batting at a better than a .300 clip and has clouted two home runs this year, the last one Sunday over a 330-foot-distant, 20-foot-high fence at Chattanooga.

Fulton County Honor Athletes To Be Feted

Youngsters who emerged as honor athletes from the third annual Fulton county athletic program, sponsored by The Constitution, will be feted at a banquet at 6 p. m. today at the Ansley hotel.

The fine program, in which only students who have not won varsity letters in any sport may participate, annually produces around 50 who earn enough points to rate as honor athletes.

Graham Jackson, popular Atlanta pianist, who now is a chief in the Navy, will entertain the athletes, school principals and coaches who are invited to attend.

As has been the custom in the past there will be only one speech, that by H. H. Trotti, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, who also will present medals and other awards.

North Fulton won this year's competition with a total of 500 points. West Fulton was second and Fulton High third.

Bright Takes Medal Honors

Mrs. Morton Bright, 1943 City champion, yesterday won medalist honors in the qualifying round of the Atlanta Women's Golf Association's annual tournament on the East Lake course, where match play will begin today.

Mrs. Bright, who copped last year's meet on the same course by downing Mrs. W. D. Tumlin in the finals, is slated to meet Mrs. Warren Pollard in the first round today. Mrs. Tumlin will engage Mrs. John Ray.

Other matches in the championship flight pit Mrs. W. F. Darby against Mrs. C. F. Fields, Mrs. Art Mims against Mrs. W. S. Eakin, Mrs. J. O. Rhyne against Mrs. John Thurston, Mrs. H. Dixson against Mrs. H. F. Wiedeman, Miss Peggy Gude against Mrs. Henry Hubbard, Miss Rosa Lee Mayer against Mrs. Roger Martin and Mrs. R. B. Ward against Mrs. O. B. Keeler.

Coaches Seek Rules' Changes

NEW YORK, May 29.—(AP)—College football coaches voted unanimous disapproval of the intentional out-of-bounds kickoff late today and sent a recommendation to Lieutenant Colonel William Bingham, of Harvard, chairman of the NCAA rules committee, that his group meet as early as possible to consider two changes in the playing code.

The first suggested rule change would put the ball in play following an out-of-bounds kickoff on the receiving team's 45-yard line instead of on the 35. Use of a one-inch tee at the kickoff also was suggested.

The second would make forward passing legal anywhere behind the line of scrimmage. At present the passer must be at least five yards behind the line.

The unanimous disapproval of the off-the-field boot was surprising. Both Crisler and Bill Alexander, of Georgia Tech, attended the meetings. Both also are members of the NCAA rules committee which this winter voted not to tamper with the code for the duration.

They also voted the A. A. Stagg award to the family of the late Walter Okeson, for many years head of the NCAA rules committee, as having done the most for football over a period of years and named Ray Morrison, of Temple, acting president of the organization.

Lieutenant Commander Matty Bell, of Georgia Preflight School, said press of his new duties made it impossible for him to continue the presidency.

The coaches also recommended that high school mentors be given representation on the NCAA rules committee and that the differences between the collegiate and prep playing codes be wiped out.

Army Breaks Up Powerhouse Teams

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—The Army is breaking up the powerhouse sports teams at Army posts and sending the soldier-sports luminaries out to boost morale in combat outfits.

From now on, the camps will be able to boast of only a few of outstanding football and baseball players and other big-name athletes—and they'll be in the limited service category.

The others, under orders of General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, are going into combat outfits to bolster their sports teams. There'll probably not be more than a dozen to a division.

A resolution urging that the mother of an American soldier who fought on Bataan be given at seat at the peace table has been passed by the Atlanta chapter of the Philippine-American Club and sent to members of congress.

Mrs. Charles Cook Sr., president of the club, yesterday reported that the club, at a meeting held Sunday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, also passed resolutions urging military authorities to work out a more humane method of informing parents that their sons are listed on the casualty lists.

"We feel," Mrs. Cook said, "that messages of this type should be delivered in person by a minister, or by Red Cross or military officials."

Vets' Pensions Are Increased

WASHINGTON, May 29.—(AP)—Two measures increasing compensation of disabled veterans of both world wars were signed today by President Roosevelt.

One boosts by 15 per cent benefits to veterans with service connected disabilities, and to their dependents as well.

The other raises from $40 to $50 the monthly compensation of permanently and totally disabled veterans whose disabilities are not service connected, and raises from $40 to $60 the benefits to such veterans who have received compensation for 10 years or more or who have reached 65 years of age.

Mr. Roosevelt also signed a bill making military and naval personnel receiving retired pay eligible for pensions. Under its terms these officers would be placed on pension rolls if they waived pay and allowances in an amount equal to the pension they would receive.

Presbyterians Elect Atlantan

MONTREAT, N. C., May 29.—(AP)—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. unanimously elected Dr. C. H. Pritchard, of Atlanta, Ga., executive secretary of home missions today to succeed Dr. Homer McMillan, who has held the post since 1906.

Dr. McMillan will retire September 1 because of having reached the age limit. The assembly stood in appreciation of his long service, and he was asked to continue his connection with the home missions committee in an advisory capacity.

Dr. Pritchard has been educational secretary of the executive committee of home missions, with headquarters in Atlanta, for the last nine years. He is a native of Blacksburg, Va., and a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and the Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Va. He was ordained by the Kanawha presbytery and did missionary work in Charleston, W. Va., and later was pastor of Lydia Robson Memorial church in Charleston.

He was pastor of the Oakhurst Presbyterian church of Decatur, Ga., 1930-35, when he became educational secretary of home missions. He received the doctor of divinity degree from Hampden-Sydney college in 1940.

Hartley Clears Hospital Staff

Death of an Atlanta patient at the Milledgeville state hospital May 13 was due to pneumonia, and not to any injuries he might have accidentally received at the hospital, State Welfare Director A. J. Hartley said yesterday, following an investigation.

Brothers of the man asked an investigation after reporting that an autopsy showed his jaw and ribs broken.

The probe, conducted by Hospital Superintendent Y. N. Yarbrough, said the man was violent and had to be restrained. No injuries were inflicted purposely, the report said, and authorities did not say there were any injuries at all. The report said, however, that the man fought with attendants seeking to restrain him.

Yarbrough said the patient's excited and combative condition was such as to prevent adequate examination. At no time did the patient's condition indicate anything that would lead physicians to suspect he had sustained internal injuries, he added.

Georgia Representatives Touring Cheese Plants

Interested in developing cheese factories in this state, the Georgia legislature's milk committee leaves today for a tour of Tennesee cheese plants.

Establishments of cheese plants in Georgia would provide dairymen with a new profitable means of disposing of dairy products and would encourage dairying, Senator Henry Arnall, of Newnan, chairman of the committee, said.

Two members of the committee are from dairying counties, and said their sections are interested in establishing cheese factories. They are P. C. Rossee, of Eatonton, and Glenn Phillips, of Harlem. Accompanying the committee will be State Milk Control Director Alton Cogdell.

While in Tennessee this week, the Georgia visitors will be shown through about a dozen cheese plants by Tennessee's dairy commissioner, W. L. Fuqua.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and aunt, Mrs. Mattie Sims, who departed this life eight years ago today, May 30 1936.

We often sit and think of you when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy in the withered oak, when all other things decay,
Our love for you will still keep green,
and never fade away.
